Sunset is welcome sight

After the sighting of several tornadoes and generally threatening weather of late Thursday afternoon, Friday's blue skies and clear sunset were a welcome view for Sikeston area residents. 3 Charged in slayings at Grandin

DONIPHAN, Mo. (AP)-James Hall, Ripley County prosecutor, filed nine counts of murder charges in Magistrates Court here today against three men who were being held in connection with the extortion and murders of a Grandin bank president and two members of his family on Wednesday.

Hall said each of the three men were charged with three counts of murder in the shooting deaths of Robert R. Kitterman, 43, his wife Bertha, 38, and their daughter Roberta, 17, who were found tied to trees at an abandoned farm after $9,811 had been extorted from Kitterman's bank.

The Missouri Highway Patrol identified the three men as Dallas R. Delay, 33, of Valle Mines, and Jerry W. Rector, 22, and Lloyd D. Cowin, 21, both of Van Buren. The trio was being held at the Butler County Jail at nearby Poplar Bluff where they had been arrested on Friday.

Delay was arrested Friday night on warrants issued in Jefferson County, which charged him with obtaining money under false pretenses and changing an automobile identification number, police said. Cowin and Rector had been arrested at the house earlier, police said.

First for taxpayers

Must list township

For the first time since the filing of federal income tax returns was initiated, residents who live outside the limits on an incorporated area will have to enter the name of the township in which they live on their tax forms.

According to Carl E. Clark, manager of the Internal Revenue Service office in Cape Girardeau, the new requirement came about as a result of federal revenue - sharing law passed last year. The law, Clark explained, will redirect money into the taxpayer's area.

Clark said the law has caused confusion and misunderstanding among people because many don't know which township they live in.

Townships, including communities located in each, for Scott County are:

Richland Township: McMullen, Salcedo, Miner, Crowder and Sikeston.

Tywappity Township: Dielhstadt and Lusk Chapel

Commerce Township: Commerce.

Sandywood Township: Blodgett.

Kelso Township: Scott City, Illmo and Chaffee.

Moreland Township: Benton and New Hamburg.

Morley Township: Morley, Vanduser and Haywood City.

Sylvania Township; Oran, Bleda and Perkins.

Nixon highlights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of President Nixon's inaugural address:

"When we met here four years ago, America was bleak in spirit, depressed by the prospect of seemingly endless war abroad and of destructive conflict at home. As we meet here today, we stand on the threshhold of a new era of peace in the world. The central question before us is: How shall we use that peace?

"Let us resolve that this era we are about to enter will not be what other post-war periods have been: a time of retreat and isolation that leads to stagnation at home and invites new danger abroad.

"Because of America's bold initiatives, 1972 will be long remembered as the year of the greatest progress since World War II toward a lasting peace in the world.

"We shall respect our treaty commitments. We shall support vigorously the principle that no country has the right to impose its will or its rule on another by force. We shall continue, in this era of negotiation, to work for the limitation of nuclear arms, and to reduce the danger of confrontation between the great powers.

"We shall do our share in defending peace and freedom in the world. But we shall expect others to do their share.

"The time has passed when America will make every other nation's conflict our own, or make every other nation's future our responsibility, or presume to tell the people of other nations how to manage their own affairs.

"Abroad, the shift from old policies to new has not been a retreat from our responsibilities, but a better way to peace. At home, the shift from old policies to new will not be a retreat from our responsibilities, but a better way to progress.

"A person can be expected to act responsibly only if he has responsibility. This is human nature. So let us encourage individuals at home and nations abroad to do more for themselves and decide more for themselves.

"In our own lives, let each of us ask—not just what will government do for me, but what I do for myself?

Achter disrupts court proceedings

CHARLESTON — A preliminary hearing Friday morning in Magistrate Court was continued by Special Judge Lloyd Briggs of Scott County after the defendant, Leslie Allen Achter of East Prairie, repeatedly disrupted courtroom proceedings.

Achter interrupted Judge Briggs several times as the judge attempted to read the charges against him. Briggs warned Achter that unless he remained quiet he would have him bound and gagged and finally succeeded in reading the first charge, a felony of carrying a concealed. 38- caliber pistol, to which Achter pleaded not guilty.

Before the judge could read the second charge of burglary and stealing, Achter informed the court he was filing a writ of habeas corpus asking that his court-appointed attorney be disqualified on grounds he was biased and prejudiced toward him. Achter also asked for disqualification of Judge Briggs, who had previously disqualified himself in a Scott County case against Achter.

Achter continued to interrupt Briggs and after repeated warnings to remain quiet, Achter told the judge, "You can't make me shut my mouth." At this point Briggs directed Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons and Deputy Sheriff Jack Ivie to remove Achter from the courtroom and return him shackled and gagged.

Upon returning to the courtroom, Achter managed to get the gag out of his mouth and began shouting, "You're violating my constitutional rights." He was more firmly gagged and the reading of the burglary and stealing charges continued.

Briggs overruled the motion that he disqualify himself. However, Achter's court- appointed attorney was disqualified after asking to be allowed to withdraw from the case. Another attorney was appointed to represent Achter at a preliminary hearing at a later date.

Achter was arrested Dec. 20 in East Prairie by highway patrolmen. Reportedly, Achter had committed a traffic offense, and when officers stopped him, he jumped from his car and attempted to outrun them on foot. A 12 gauge shotgun, wedding band, guitar, electric razor, lighter and an Air Force ring stolen from the Bobby Johnson home near Anniston earlier the same day were reportedly found in Achter's car.

He remains in custody under $7,500 bond.

ABOLISH
JANUARY

From The Washington Post

The man who writes our benign and upbeat editorials celebrating the months of the year is out of town at the moment. But since they also have January where he is, the rest of us have decided not to deliver our collective opinion on the subject and simply to await his return. It is probably just as well.

When we put our heads together the other day, we were unable to think of anything that characterized January other than a flood of Christmas bills, the universal post-holiday need to go on a diet, deadline for paying the final installment on quarterly income taxes, head colds, cold in general, broken resolutions, smoker's cough, drinker's stomach and the endless opportunity to consider all this while sitting at the wheel of a car that won't start in the morning. One among us said he believed he had read somewhere that something on the whole beneficient happened to auks in the month of January, but no on could imagine what it was.

In general, the feeling of the group was that January, which after all holds out no prospect more cheering than the unfortunate arrival of February — was without redeeming social value.

Be that as it may, none of this should be construed as official Washington Post editorial policy. We defer that judgment until the return of our expert. At the same time, however, we do think it appropriate for us to take a firm editorial position on the unspeakable weather of the past few days — without implicating the month of January as such, one way or the other. After all, it could happen to practically any month, and even though you don't see too much of this sort of thing in July, it would be the height of irresponsibility to level sweeping charges or to name names before all the evidence is in.

Having said that (on the one hand), we are obliged (on the other) to add that it would be equally irresponsible to duck this difficult issue which is so much on the mind of the community at the moment. So we will come right out with it: We are against the weather; we oppose it; we think it should be sent back to committee.

These are not merely self-serving thoughts, the product of a typewriter we only wish were "smoking" as a fine phrase goes. There are substantial legal, moral and political grounds for opposing the scandalous temperatures of recent days.

They have been extreme (and we all know what we think of extremism) — and - worse — they have been discriminatory so far as the suburbs and the airports are concerned. They could be outlawed on these counts alone.

Now — how is it we get out of these things? — it is past time for men of good will to speak up, for the White House to end its puzzling silence, for the Congress to cease its delaying tactics, for the principals involved to move away from frozen positions, for a thaw in relations, for a breaking of the ice — what we mean to say (meaning no disrespect to January) is we think it is time for June.

NEW YEAR RECIPE

Take twelve fine, full-grown months; see that they are thoroughly free from all old memories of bitterness, rancor, and jealousy; cleanse from every clinging spite; wash off any specks of pettiness; in short, have them as fresh and clean as when they first came from the great storehouse of time.

Cut each of these months into thirty or thirty-one equal parts. This batch will keep for just one year. Do not attempt to make up the whole batch at one time (you may spoil the entire lot this way) but prepare one day at a time as follows:

Into each day put twelve parts of faith, eleven of patients, ten of courage, nine of work (if you omit this ingredient you will spoil the flavor of the rest), eight of hope, seven of fidelity, six of liberality, five of kindness, four of rest (leaving this out is like leaving the oil out of salad) and one well selected resolution.

Put in about a teaspoonful of good spirits, a dash of fun, a pinch of folly, a sprinkling of play and one heaping cupful of good humor.

Pour into the whole love, and mix with vim. Cook thoroughly in a fervent heat; garnish with a few smiles and a sprig of joy; then serve with quietness, unselfishness, and cheerfulness; and a Happy New Year is a certainty!

PROPOSAL FOR TAX SLAVERY

A sweeping program to establish national health insurance on a compulsory basis has been introduced in Congress. The nations is set for the last long plunge into the depths of a welfare state. It is up to the citizens of the United States, as taxpayers and voters, not to succumb to the sugarcoating on the bitter pill of statism that proponents of national health insurance hope the people will now swallow.

Advocates of the national health insurance proposal estimated, upon introduction of the measure, that it would cost Americans $40 billion a year. Only the most gullible will find it possible to accept the cost figures of those who sponsor the proposal. In the past, estimates have been woefully short. A tone of reality has entered the national health insurance debate with the sharp rejection of the plan by Mr. John G. Veneman, under secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. On the question of costs, Mr. Veneman comments, "Actuarial estimates from the Social Security Administration indicate that the total expenditures under this bill in the year 1974, which would be the first full year of its operation, would come to $77 billion...This is equal to about half the total present general revenues of the federal government and would be equivalent to a federal health tax of over $1,000 per year for every household."

Mr. Veneman further commented, "There are those who insist that the present system is sound and should be left alone. Others demand that we throw out the baby with the bath water and replace our pluralistic health enterprise with some monolithic scheme in which the federal government controls everything...." Mr. Veneman thinks both extremes are wrong. He believes, "the role of the federal government in part is properly to do what the private sector cannot do..." This is the heart of the expanded health care plan that has been recommended by the American Medical Association and is known as Medicredit.

National helath insurance can be far more than a mere health plan. It can be a device for altering the economic and political system of the United States and, as the cost of the current proposals indicate, could threaten virtually every American family with a form of tax bondage that amounts to slavery.

SOARING
EDUCATION COSTS

From grade school through college, education is becoming a costly, complicated business. Education at all levels may bbe affected by taxpayer revolts and the inability of students and their families to pay tuition and other expenses of higher education.

At higher educational levels, rising costs are putting college out of reach of millions of American families. It costs up to $4,400 a year at present to attend a university. Consequently, applications are down at many institutions. If the present trend continues, estimates place tuition and living costs at a university in excess of $8,000 a year before the end of the 1970's. Currently, a bachelor's degree at a first-rank university costs a student about $22,000 - a doctorate up to $47,000. It requires a fourth to a half of an average family's income to pay expenses at most colleges if the student lives on campus.

It appears that the economics of acquiring an education may largely solve the problem of student unrest. Those fortunate enough to attend college will be there but for one purpose -- to get the most for their money in their chosen fields of learning.

One statement heard frequently these days is that "American business can sell anything — except itself!" Certainly various opinion polls show that business has lost favor with the public. Polls also indicate that young people particularly have a serious lack of factual information on which to base a belief in business.

Yet anyone who thinks twice about the subject will agree that a prosperous, healthy America depends on a successful and respected business community. To overcome the lack of knowledge about industry and business, the National Association of Manufacturers and the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi are jointly encouraging students and businessmen to form Student / Industry Action Committees.

The action committees will be comprised of students and business representatives in all local college communities. The broad aim will be to stimulate discussion and explore areas of mutual concern to the community. Hopefully, these meetings will lead to active solutions of local problems as well as a deeper understanding and mutual respect for one another.

Today one-third of our population is enrolled in schools and colleges, and eight million students are now, or soon will be, eligible to vote. Seldom in history have citizens faced so many challenges to long-accepted beliefs. If our democratic, private enterprise, free society is to survive, these differences must be resolved.

The support and basic understanding of business by the younger generation is vital to our well-being. Active participation in this program will provide the opportunity for discussion of the benefits and the weaknesses of our economic and social systems. It can be the first step in resolving our problems.

WHAT IS HE TRYING TO DO TO AMERICA?

What is President Nixon trying to do to America?

First he cut in half the money that Congress voted for fighting pollution of our water, soil and air, a battle that is designed to prevent further poisoning of these elements and of the American people. That cut will prevent many cities, towns and states from taking the anti- pollution measures they should.

Now comes a cut in money for farmers in distressed areas in which emergencies have been declared because of drouth, floods or other disasters over which no one has control. The order went out last week that the Farmers Home Administration can lend no more money to farmers in such areas. Farmers in some of the distressed sections claim they will be unable to continue and will have to quit business because of lack of low cost money to carry them through to another crop year.

The final straw was last week, when the President ordered that no more federal money be loaned to rural electric cooperatives at the low interest rate that has made it possible for so many millions to enjoy the conveniences of electricity, running water, and the other advantages that go with them. Instead, if the rural cooperatives get the money they need, they'll have to get it from private sources, possibly some of the multi- millionaire friends of the administration, at the high going interest rates, which will eliminate thousands of rural families from the benefits of these facilities.

The reasons given, of course, are that this money will create more inflation, but at the same time billions are being spent in useless programs that benefit Big Business.

Some of the things that are happening in these United States simply don't make sense to us.

A new electronic "gun" pasteurizes wood chips and prevents deterioration in storage, which costs the lumber industry $200 million annually.

The unusual electron chip treatment, described as "resembling the operation of an outsized television tube" is a joint project of Georgia-Pacific Corp., mill in Toledo, Ore., and Radiation Development Ltd. of Vancouver, B. C.

The treatment, comparable to the process used for the preservation of food, appears to alter the molecular structure of the wood with a noticeable increase in the yield of pulp from the raw chips, a reduction of lignin loss, reduction in the use of chemicals, and faster pulping.

One thing you can blame on the population explosion is a lot of tired grandmothers.

Harry was sitting on a stool at the bar when the most gorgeous blonde he'd ever seen took the seat next to him. Thinking that this girl was all class, and wondering how to impress her, he raised himself as high on the stool as he could, and said, "I'm really not this tall, M'am. I'm sitting on my wallet!"

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- Whipping up, with the drama of onrushing storm warnings in the voice of a TV weather forecaster, is that truly tumultuous battle between labor leaders and business executives over the right of major corporations to operate freely abroad; to invest their money where they choose; to seek lower wage areas anywhere in the world; to shut down their U.S. plants and produce even on China Sea coasts if they wish.

Most fiery of the issues is who is responsible for the flood of imports from steel to bras, from toys to television sets--- a flood which is sweeping away American jobs by the hundreds of thousands, say the union chiefs.

Recently I wrote that some American workers were no longer the speediest or even the most skilled in the world.

My friend, the liberal leader of the militant, million-member International Assn. of Machinists (AFL— CIO) of the U.S. and Canada, read the column and disagreed with its thrust. And he wrote to tell me so.

Since his union, the AFL— CIO's second largest, is at the inner core of most industries and since he is a prominent national AFL— CIO president who adds a new dimension to the story which in mid— 1973 will be knwon as the War of the Burke— Hartke Bill, and in the driving compulsion of objectivity, I'm passing on his views here, in his own words:

By Floyd E. Smith,
President
International Association of
Mashinists and
Aerospace Workers

Dear Vic:

You've been around a year or two or three. You know as well as anyone that there's a lot of confusion surrounding this word "productivity." I read your recent column on the subject. I don't quarrel with your reporting; but I do want to add another dimension.

All thoughtful men will agree that we have to produce more if we want more Americans to enjoy a better life. We have to be competitive in order to survive. We never had any problem with foreign competition until the last few years. The problem doesn't come from a change in the work habits of Americans. In fact, American workers are still far and away the most productive in the world. According to the U.S. Department of Labor, American productivity is now increasing at about twice the normal rate.

But despite the increasing productivity, our foreign trade deficit has grown. We are importing more and exporting less-- in dollar volume. Moreover, we are importing more manufactured goods involving lots of skilled work and exporting agricultural produce that make few jobs.

Our problem is not the fact that the American standard of living is proportionately higher than it was in relation to Japan or Europe. Our problem arises because our industries have been selling, licensing or giving away-- in some cases-- the big advantage they have had over the Japanese and the Europeans and other nationalities.

Until the last decade, we produced better quality goods at lower prices because we had superior technology, better engineering and superior craftsmanship. That's what we are selling off and that is why American plants have lost their competitive advantage.

It's happening today even in our aerospace industry. Since World War II, the American aerospace industry has supplied most of the world's commercial and military aircraft. Until a couple of years ago, 85 per cent of the world's aircraft were made in American factories by American workers. Most of them are members of our Machinists Union, I am proud to say. That superiority is now declining. By 1980 the figure is expected to drop to 60 per cent. Like so many other American industries-- electronics, typewriters, computers, shoes, textiles, bicycles, pianos-- the aerospace industry is becoming multinational. More and more manufacturers are moving production into overseas plants.

Let me give you a few examples:

McDonnell Douglas has licensed Mitsubishi-- the company that produced the famed Zero dive bombers for World War II- to build 91 copies of the famous F- 4 Phantom fighter. The F- 4 is the most successful fighter of all time. It has had no serious competitor except the Russian MIG 21.

Up to now, the F- 4 has been built by Machinist Union members at S. Louis. But McDonnell Douglas has agreed to furnish the blueprints, the technology and, where necessary, technicians to build the F- 4 in Japan.

By the time that job is completed, Mitsubishi employees will know as much about building those jet fighters as McDonnell Douglas employees. From there on the advantage has to be all in favor of the Japanese because Japanese workers can live on a lot less than American workers.

Recently, the Boeing Company entered into an agreement with the Japanese government to develop a new wide- bodied air bus. Technology for the short- haul airliner will come from Seattle; the work will be done in Japan by employees of three manufacturers-- Mitsubishi, Kawasaki and Fuji.

At the same time, United Aircraft is helping Mitsubishi produce gas turbine engines. The technology will come from East Hartford.

It is no secret in Seattle that 200 Italians are being trained there by Boeing. Eventually they will go home to tool up an Italian aircraft plant to produce short take-off and landing aircraft (STOL) for the European market. Until now, Boeing planes sold to European airlines have always come from Seattle.

Our largest manufacturer of private aircraft, Cessna, is working with Reims Aviation of France. Most Cessnas sold in Europe last year were built in France.

These are a few recent examples of how one industry is exporting its technology instead of its products.

American workers already have lost nearly one million jobs because of the competition of foreign goods. The problem is never going to be solved by publicity campaigns urging American workers to greater effort.

American manufacturers who transfer production to plants in Europe do so because those countries prohibit or limit the importation of American- made goods. Sometimes the barriers are high tariffs, sometimes monetary or other restrictions. We think our government could negotiate for the same free trade and easy access to foreign markets that foreign producers have in the American market.

We think part of the answer lies in rewriting our strange tax law that now actually encourages American firms to do their manufacturing outside the United States.

We think there should be some government control over the export of our American technology. We ought to make sure that the licensing is not going to hurt the United States.

These answers are part of a bill in Congress known as the Burke— Hartke bill. It deserves a lot of support.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Pentagon Spending Spree

WASHINGTON — The defense industries have such a strangle- hold on the Capitol dome that Congress is in danger of losing its control over military spending.

For three decades, Congressmen have been showering greenbacks like confetti upon the Pentagon. Staggering amounts have been lavished on armaments that should never have been built. Cost overruns and wasteful squandering have become commonplace in defence work. Congressmen who would challenge every last detail of a $50,000 anti-poverty project would approve a $50 million Pentagon proposal with no questions asked.

This has created an atmosphere of fiscal abandon in the Pentagon and has led to a growing disregard for civilian fiscal authority.

The Anti-Deficiency Act, for example, forbids government employees from spending or obligating more money than Congress appropriates. A violation is considered a serious federal crime, punishable by a $5,000 fine and two years in prison.

Yet we recently uncovered documentary evidence that the Navy had spent millions without the consent of Congress. Now we have obtained some classified Army audits which show that the Army, too, is guilty of the same financial finagling.

We wrote about the Navy's "over- obligations," as the unauthorized spending is called, last November 14. Our story led to congressional inquiries, other newspaper disclosures and a government audit.

--Gross Mismanagement--

The Navy has now sent Congress a report on its illegal over- spending. Behind the dull fiscal details is a story of gross mismanagement. The document explains, for example, how the personnel people managed to spend $127 million for pay and travel beyond the level authorized by Congress.

Take the Navy's habit of moving people around. Although the Navy had only 623,248 people on its roster in 1971, it managed to relocate them 525,132 times during the year. Cost to the taxpayers: a whopping $240,772,000.

For breaking the law, two admirals have received letters of admonition, a captain has been relieved from duty, another captain has been transferred, and a clerk has been bawled out for altering official records.

Defense Secretary Mel Laird justified the light punishment, because he found no evidence of "intentional" over spending. He must not have read the Navy's report. It cites two officials for making "adjustments to official accounting records which distorted the status of obligations." In another instance, Navy people attempted to write $8,167,592 worth of bills on a special Treasury account in violation of regulations.

Like the Navy documents, the Army audits don't make exciting reading. But they show illegal expenditures over $180 million, another shocking defiance of Congress' power of the purse. Two separate audits show that the Army, as the Navy, has obligated money Congress hasn't appropriated for salaries and transportation.

--Balancing the Books--

The Army bursars had their worst trouble in 1970, finding their budget underestimated by more than $107 million. In an attempt to balance the books, they billed the Air Force, National Guard and Army Reserve for past services. This produced $32.7 million, which was illegally transferred to reduce the pay deficit.

The Army performed some additional sleight - of-hand with the budget for clothing and subsistence for Southeast Asia and magically produced another $74.7 million to cover the deficit. The audit sternly calls this maneuver an "improper transaction."

The second audit shows that the budget for Operation and Maintenance was overobligated $56.5 million in the 1971 fiscal year, most of it for transportation. Further investigation, warns the audit, "could ... increase amount possibly overobligated."

To make up the funds that had been illegally spent, the Army looked around for available funds and transferred money that had been earmarked for ammunition testing and base operations. Retroactive billings were drawn up to cover the dubious transaction.

The audit notes wryly that ammunition testing at Jefferson Proving Grounds, "as a result of the retroactive billing, was provided funds twice for the same project."

In response to our inquiries about the confidential audits, the Army said they were part of an "ongoing audit." Any violations will be reported to Congress and the President, a spokesman promised. He could not estimate when the final report would be ready.

Dystrophy week proclaimed

The week beginning Sunday has been proclaimed Muscular Dystrophy Week in Sikeston by Mayor Frank Ferrell.

Ferrell said the victims of Muscular Dystrophy, the majority of whom are children, derive comfort and hope from the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America comprehensive program of patient care and research.

Because the scope of the MDAA's research program also brings hope to millions suffering related neuromuscular diseases, Ferrell said he urges everyone to support the MDAA's work.

Bootheel alcoholism study prospects good

KENNETT — Prospects for obtaining a $50,000 initiation and development grant to study the problem of alcoholism in the Bootheel are good, according to Moody Summitt, director of Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council.

Summitt reported on the status of the grant Tuesday at a meeting of the Bootheel Task Force on Alcohol and Drug Abuse at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital.

An outgrowth of the one-year study is expected to be an ongoing program for the treatment of alcoholism, which would probably include a detoxification center for acute alcoholism patients, a halfway house where alcoholics could stay for a period of time in a protected environment and professional counselors to work with alcoholics, their families and employers.

Tomm Burris, a Bernie pharmacist, gave task force members a general view of the drug abuse problem in the United States and the bootheel area.

The program launched the second phase of the task force study, which will deal with drug abuse other than alcohol.

Ernie Sjoblem, state director of the Missouri Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, was introduced. The Missouri BNDD has the responsibility of monitoring the professional distribution of controlled substances in the state.

John Brazel of State Hospital No. 4 at Farmington gave a brief report on the work at the A. T. C. unit and mentioned that the beds for drug abuse are not in use due to lack of funding.

Lee Ford, regional development specialist, told of his background as a narcotics agent and of his recent work with the drug abuse program in Tennessee.

The next meeting of the task force will be in Sikeston in February.

What's the law?

The case of the black-eyed wife

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Margie wasn't cagy enough to handle the beast in her husband. Consequently, she couldn't stop him one day from beating her up. The next day, however, to salve her wounds, she sued him for assault and battery, demanding $1,000 for her injuries.

"Before we got married" she told the judge, "I used to close my eyes whenever my husband kissed me. Now he closes them for me...and I've got two shiners to prove it."

"For better or worse," was the defense, "she's my wife. And, a wife can't testify against a husband. Consequently, there's no lawful evidence that I struck her and her case has to be dismissed."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit black- eyed Margie to testify against her husband.?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that out of necessity a wife can testify against a husband when the husband is accused of assaulting his wife. The reason, the judge pointed out, is that generally no outsider is present when a husband inflicts the injuries. And if she were not allowed to testify, the law might be powerless to redress the wrong and the husband would be able to continually beat his wife with impunity.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter of 19 refuses to go to college, has no job and is not interested in job training of any kind. Her boyfriend is 21. He also lives with his parents. They have been "going steady" for four years and see each other every day and every night. (He works a split shift.) So far as we know they have no plans to get married-- now or maybe ever.

We give our daughter no allowance. She eats no meals with us, but takes junk to her room. She does no housework and fights with her brothers and sisters constantly.

Last week I moved her furniture to the garage. She moved it back. I told her then to get out. She said she would, with pleasure, when she can afford a place of her own.

My husband and I are physically sick from this girl's terrible attitude toward everything in life that should mean something. Must we keep her here until she gets ready to leave; Please advise.-- Up Against It

Dear Up: There are legal steps you can take to get a 19-year- old out of your house, but I suggest a few visits with a counselor before you see a lawyer at a last resort.

Obviously there is a serious problem of communication in your family, and you might profit from some professional guidance. If you think my answer is a cop- out, let me assure you it contains excellent advice, and I hope, for the sake of everyone concerned, that you will take it.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with you. Some other name should be given to a male nurse. Either "medic" or "corpsman" would be a great improvement.

I also agree with you that there is nothing unmanly about giving bedside care to the sick and infirm. Thanks for your stand on both issues.--- C.W., Director of Action Line, Akron Beacon Journal

Dear C.W.: How about "paramedic?" Medic means a physician or surgeon, and somehow "corpsman" is too close to "corpse."

It's goood to get a letter from Akron. And please say hello to your Publisher, Ben Maidenberg. He's a honey and one of my first friends in the newspaper business.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your comments on the deficiencies of American education. May I go further?

One of the most vital deficiencies is in consumer education. No one teaches students how to shop in a supermarket, how to buy beef, fresh fruits and vegetables, how to buy insurance, how to establish credit, how to trade a car-- what to watch out for. No instruction whatever on what to do if appliances don't work or where to take any number of complaints that consumers have in regard to faulty merchandise. No instructions on when to sue, or when to notify the Better Business Bureau. We are a nation of overfed and undernourished. We fall for every trick in the book because we are not informed.

When we try to get consumer education into the schools we encounter a brick wall of opposition. The schools are against it! Yet teachers contact us by the dozens and ask what to teach their students-- and how.

Will you please say a good word for consumer education, Ann? People listen to you.--- Mrs. D.R.J. Super- Mkt. Chairman Committee, Va. Citizen's Consumer Council

Dear Mrs. D.R.J.: I received dozens of letters from readers urging me to get behind consumer education. You said it best. Here's your letter and my thanks for writing it.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting-- What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper, enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self addressed envelope.

Rules for making new kids rules

Clear cut rules for behaving make day to day living easier. Children should be taught the rules of living comfortably with their family as well as others. By spelling out the rules of guides for their children, patents can know when to reward, ignore and punish. Rules also help the child to remember what is expected.

Here are some rules about making rules: Rules should be short, stated positively and easy to remember for parent and child. An example of this is "Homework before TV", not "If you don't get your homework done, you can't watch TV".

Make it clear what you want and what happens if it 'oesn't get done. Instead of saying "Dishes must be washed each night," try this, "Dishes must be washed before TV".

It should be easy to see if the rule was followed or not. When a rule gives the details of what has to by done, the child has no excuse for only doing a part. Vague rules are hard to check. When you tell your child to clean h's room befo egoing out to play, don't tell him specific things to be done. You may forget some and he will, too. Simply state that you want a complete job. Then stick to it.

Be sure the rule is appropriate for your child's age and abilities.

Meadows LHS surprise

LILBOURN — Despite the services of Pope Hunt and Alfred Redd for the first time this season, the Daily Standard's sixth ranked Lilbourn Panthers and a couple of whistle happy referees managed to hand Sikeston its ninth straight defeat, 76-66, Friday night.

Three technicals in the final quarter by the officials took the heart out of a Sikeston comeback attempt and kept the Bulldog defense confused all game with their questionable charging fouls.

Pope Hunt, Sikeston's 6-foot-4 pivotman, was unstoppable in the contest. The senior, in his first game back with the team, scored 28 points and collared 18 rebounds in the defeat.

Sikeston did enjoy moments of rejoyce as the Bulldog junior varsity handed the Panthers its first loss of the season, 52-51.

Sparkplug for the cold-shooting Panthers was Carl Meadows.

The 6-foot-2 junior, usually operating out of a reserve's role, was handed a rare starting assignment and he responded with a 22-point effort. Fourteen of those came in the Panther's second quarter surge when they assumed a nine-point halftime lead.

Sikeston, as has been the case lately, won the battle of statistics, but lost the important one -- the one on the scoreboard. The Bulldogs shot 43 per cent, compared to their hosts' 40 per cent mark. They outrebounded the shorter Panthers 41-27 and had two turnovers less, 22 - 20.

However, the quicker Panthers were able to beat Sikeston to loose balls. Also, the Panthers kept a closer rein on their tongues.

The Bulldogs were obviously buoyed by the presence of Hunt. They played fine basketball for the first eight minutes, and only a hot-shooting Lilbourn quintet kept the score from getting out of hand. Hunt, outjumping everyone, scored ten points, mostly on inside shots as the Bulldogs led 16 -15.

Sikeston's poor effort in the second period cost them the ball game. Instead of working the ball inside, the team reverted to their former practice of shooting 30-foot shots and the Panthers outscored them 20-10 for a 35-26 halftime lead. In those eight minutes, Meadows was fabulous for Lilbourn hitting six of seven shots and scoring 14 points to go with five rebounds.

The Bulldogs' play was sloppy in the third period. The shooting was off, and Hunt seemed to momentarily lose his touch inside. Sikeston managed just a dozen points and fell two more points arears of the Panthers, 49-38.

Action in the fourth period was hot and furious. The Dogs pulled within four points, 55-51, but technical fouls tore up any comeback efforts by the red-clad Bulldogs. The referees, calling their first contest, struggled for control of the game. Consequently, three technicals were called on the Bulldogs, two on one of SHS's most mild-managered players, Jeremiah Tucker.

Good efforts for the Bulldogs came from Ron Marks, Mark Couch, Paul Hewitt, and Jeremiah Tucker, in addition to Hunt's sterling performance. Marks controlled his game much better. Couch hit four clutch free throws in the fourth quarter, in addition to playing good defense. Hewitt hit four crucial points late in the first half, as his teammates were struggling in their play. Tucker, expected to score less with the arrival of Hunt, played ony of his best games. The 6-foot-3 forward scored 13 points and grabbed ten rebounds, despite missing much of the game in foul trouble.

It was Tucker's absence, coupled with Meadows' second quarter performance that ultimately spelled defeat for the winless Bulldogs. Sikeston's next game is against Doniphan's Dons in the Poplar Bluff Invitation tournament next week.

The Bulldogs did win the night's opening contest. A come- from- behind effort, led by sophomore Roger Tillman, handed the Lilbourn JV's just their ninth loss in their last 105 games, 52-51.

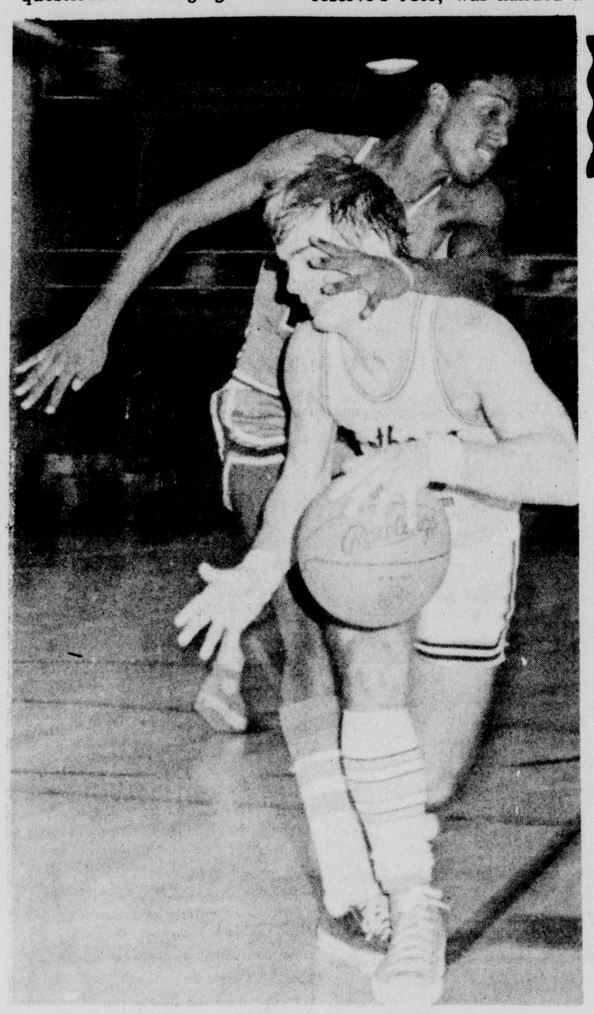

Early the game belong to Lilbourn. They enjoyed leads as much as ten points in the first half. But, the tenacious junior Bulldogs kept battling and finally pulled their fifth win out of the bag.

Tillman's scoring inside was a big factor, but it was overall a team effort as the underclassmen ran their record to 5-3.

Jumping Pope

Pope Hunt sails high in the air over Lilbourn's Carl Meadows (30) to lay in two of his 28 points at Lilbourn Friday night. The senior forward also grabbed 18 rebounds in his debut this season for the Bulldogs. Despite Hunt's performance the Bulldogs still couldn't come away with their first victory of the season as Lilbourn won, 75- 66.

Mules romp

WOODLAND — After a sluggish start, the Bernie Mules surged to an easy 58-36 win over the Woodland Cardinals Friday night.

Reuben White and Johnny Wright led Bernie scoring. White was the game's top pointmaker with his 17 point effort. Wright added a dozen markers in the winning effort.

Mark Gilmore was the only Card in double figures with his 16- point effort.

The Mules began the game shooting poorly and trailing after a period, 10-9.

However, they came alive in the second period and won going away. The Mules outscored their hosts 17-9 to lead 26-19 at half. They repeated the performance for a 43-28 lead entering the fourth period, then they brought in the reserves who added seven more points to the final difference, by outscoring Woodland 15-8.

Woodland salvaged the B-game 52-45. Mitch Smith scored 16 for the winners.

Advance wins 30th straight

ESSEX- Coach Carroll Cookson's Advance Hornets started hot against the Richland Rebels here Friday night and raced to a 80- 63 Stoddard county victory behind a balanced scoring attack led by Terry Wills' 25 points.

The Hornets showed the Rebels why they're the Daily Standard's number one team as the Rebels tried to use a zone defense but Kenny Emerson drilled in a couple of 20 foot shots and the Class S state champions were off and running.

Emerson and Wills had the hot hand in the first period and the Hornets raced to a 23- 16 lead at the buzzer.

Richland began to hit from the outside a little better in the second period and Advance hit a cool spell. The Hornets scored 20 points to 15 for Richland and the halftime score was 43- 31.

Richland tried to stay with the quick Hornets in the third quarter but Advance put in 21 points to 16 for the Rebels. The last period was played evenly at 16 points apiece.

The Hornets put four men in double figures for the game. Besides Wills 25 points, Darrell Croy hit 16, Kenny Emerson had 14, and Roger Daniel hit 10.

Rodney McKeller and Ray Clark hit 16 apiece for the Rebels with Kenny Cain getting 10.

Advance hit 32 shots from the field and 16 free throws. Richland had 29 field goals and only five free throws.

Both teams enter the Stoddard County Tournament next week at Bloomfield.

The Hornets are 19- 0 for the season and have won 30 straight. The Hornets' B team won their 14th straight game this season.

VEGETABLE OF THE YEAR

When seedsmen, meeting at Penn State University, Penna., were asked to name a "Vegetable of the Year" based on popularity among home gardeners, the giant red variety of tomato won their vote.

When a beginner gardener first decides to plant a vegetable garden, the one vegetable he'll most likely start with is the tomato, and when a group of leading seedsmen, meeting at Penn State University, Pennsylvania, were asked to name a Vegetable of the Year,"the giant red tomato won easily.

Tomatoes come in many shapes and sizes — some pear-shaped, others orange and yellow colored, some the size of cherries, but those that fall into the giant red category — such as Beefsteak, Big Boy, Better Boy, Rutgers, Whopper, Early Giant and Delicious are the most universally grown and the most productive.

Tomatoes grown from seed are best started about eight weeks before the last frost date, and transplanted into the garden after danger of frost.

It's difficult to fail with tomatoes once they're in the ground, although they will respond better to certain conditions—such as a sunny location, good drainage and a fertile soil. A mulch of straw, grass clippings or chopped leaves will conserve moisture and keep the fruit clean. Staking keeps the vines neat, and makes fruit picking easier.

Oran, Delta take consoliation wins

EAST PRAIRIE — Oran won the consolation game in the A team division in the Scott- Mississippi county tournament Friday night beating the Illmo- Scott City Rams 68-60 while in the B team division, the Delta Bobcats trimmed the Scott Central Braves 52-37 to win that consolation prize.

Coach Joe Scott's Eagles had to fight an uphill battle to take the prize when the Rams took a quick 10-6 first period as the Eagles were cold from the field.

Both teams began to hit in the second period and each team netted 16 points apiece. The score stood at 26-22 in favor of the Rams at the half.

After the intermission the Eagles went to work offensively and broke the game open with 23 points to 13 for the Rams. Oran kept up the pace in the last quarter scoring 23 more points to 21 for ISC.

Oran hit 33 field goals to 25 for the Rams but ISC took the free throw advantage 10-2.

Paul Taylor was the big man for the Eagles in the scoring column with 22 points on 11 field goals. Rand Amick led a four man double figure attack for the Rams with 17 points.

In the B game the Delta Bobcats of Coach Dale Harrison shot out to an 18-8 first period lead and coasted to the third place position.

Delta kept adding to their lead in the second period, scoring 15 points to six for the Braves.

The Braves finally slowed the Bobcats a little in the third quarter, scoring 12 points to nine for Delta.

The Braves kept battling back but came up short at the buzzer. Paul Slinkard led the Bobcats in scoring with 20 points. Gary Peet hit eight for the Braves.

Title games are on tap tonight, matching Kelly and Oran teams in the junior varsity title bout at 6:30. Kelly and Scott Central collide in the varsity title match at 8.

For the Sportsman

by Fred Copeland

for the sportsman

All the traffic safety classes in the world and all the highway safety posters wouldn't have saved the 36 squirrels, 24 foxes, 95 skunks or the one careless mink who were wiped out by automobiles on 80 miles of road near Republic, Missouri.

Workers out of the Missouri State Highway Department shed in Republic kept a count of animals between Nov. 15, 1971, and Nov. 15, 1972, on the 80 miles they service.

The total was an astonishing 822 or about 10 animals per mile. Opossums, which were not noted for their survival instinct anyway (an opossum's idea of taking evasive action is to shut his eyes and play dead) led the list with 287.

There were 95 skunks, 95 housecats, 68 dogs, 61 rabbits, 36 birds, and 36 squirrels, 48 raccoons, 24 foxes, 22 groundhogs, and 10 frogs.

Six badgers bit the dust, although badgers have only been found in the area the last five or six years.

Most astounding kill on the list was that of three fish that were found on M-highway where it crosses Wilson's Creek.

A gasoline truck did in the four horses the seven-man highway crew found. The crew estimated it missed probably 50 more animals. Each day the men recorded the number of miles, gas and hours on a board on the wall and at the same time, record the dead animals they found.

Oddly, there were only two deer killed, though collisions between autos and deer account for a number of accidents each year. The Department of Conservation and Highway Department have cooperated for several years in putting reflectors at well-known deer crossings which have proved highly effective at night at keeping the animals from jumping in front of cars.

Anybody having any comments, information, or pictures for this column should address them to Fred Copeland at the Daily Standard. The column has not been run for the last two weeks because of lack of material. All material received concerning hunting, fishing, or conservation will be brough out in future columns.

Reflectors such as these, located at deer crossings, have helped to cut down dramatically on collisions at night between automobiles and deer. But cars take a heavy toll of wildlife on Missouri highways every year.

Indians hold off Mules

KENNETT-- The Kennett Indians held off a fourth quarter surge by the Poplar Bluff Mules to down the visiting PBHS quintet in a SeMo conference encounter, 70- 68.

The Indians jumped out to a 20- 12 first period lead and also took a 14- 13 advantage to lead by nine points as they went into the locker room at halftime.

Poplar Bluff returned to the court in the third quarter and began to chip away at the Kennett margin, but managed to only outscore the Mules 17- 16 in the third frame.

Poplar Bluff outplayed and outscored the Kennett quintet in the final quarter of action, but could not gain the lead and fell short, 70- 68.

Clarkton ran into cold shooting again in the third quarter, hitting for only five points. Dexter continued their hitting and dumped in 21. The lead was too much for the Reindeers as their fourth quarter effort proved to be not enough.

Cape seeks new police site

CAPE GIRARDEAU — City Manager W. G. Lawley says he hopes the city can acquire a site for construction of a new police headquarters and jail facility within 90 days.

"All we know at this point is that the ideal site for the headquarters would be in the same general area of the city as the present station," he said.

The city manager did not rule out the possibility that the police building might be located on the site of the present station. But he did say a larger site is needed.

The City Council Wednesday night unanimously approved a resolution providing that the first expenditure from the city's federal revenue- sharing funds be used to build a new police headquarters. All city councilmen had agreed that such a facility demanded immediate attention.

The building housing present station and jail formerly was a church. The city purchased it at a cost of $45,000 in April 1959. It is "an inadequate and inappropriate structure," the council resolved.

Lawley said the council's action "merely paved the way" for initiating site acquisition options and actual planning of the facility. "We haven't really got into any details yet," he said.

"We want to put a lot of thought into it," he added. "A great deal of effort has got to go into the planning."

City officials hope the new building can be occupied within 19 to 24 months. They have given no indication when construction might begin.

"We are going to give a lot of thought to the future growth of the city before we make a final decision on location and plans," Lawley said. "What we would like to do is have several options in mind before determining where the building will be built."

Lawley said plans are to construct a "functional building as opposed to a monumental structure." It must serve the city for years to come, he pointed out.

Feed program decisions near

NEW MADRID — With sign-up in the 1973 feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs due to open in less than three weeks, New Madrid County producers have many decisions to make, reports Bernard Recker, Agricultural Stablization and Conservation (ASC) county committee chairman.

"In these coming weeks, each producer with a feed grain base or wheat or cotton allotment must make his individual decisions on whether to participate in the programs, and, if so, what plans to choose among those that are offered.

Sign-up for the 1973 feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs in scheduled Feb. 5 through March 16 at the New Madrid County ASCS Office, 565 Virginia St., New Madrid, Mo.

Participants in the feed grain set-aside program will decide whether to sign up for the 30 per cent plan or the 15 per cent plan.

"This is the main program decision a farmer will make, once he decides to be in one or more of the programs," Recker said, "but his entire farm operating plan for the year is tied in with his decisions on farm program participation.

"Before he signs up, he will want to know what land he is going to set aside if he's in the feed grain program, and he will have decided what crops he's going for -- whether he will substitute crops, whether he will grow an alternate crop on his set - aside land and take a payment reduction."

Substitution is continued in the 1973 farm programs, the ASC committee chairman pointed out. He explained that substitution means a producer may choose among the following crops -- corn, grain sorghum, barley, wheat, soybeans -- and still preserve his farm's base or allotment record, earn program payments, and be elibible for loans so long as he stays within other program requirements.

Alternate crops permitted on set-aside land, if a producer accepts a reduction in program payment, include sunflower, safflower, sesame, guar, mustard seed, castor beans, crambe, and plantago ovato.

"These and other details of the 1973 programs for feed grains, wheat, and cotton will be available to producers through leaflets and explanations offered by the county ASCS office before sign-up begins and throughout the rest of the year," Recker said.

Mandatory set-aside program eliminated

NEW MADRID — In a move to assure an adequate supply of agricultural commodities to meet a growing market demand, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced the elimination of the mandatory set- aside requirement under the 1973 wheat program, except for those producers who elect to participate in the voluntary set-aside.

In order to participate in the voluntary set-aside program, these producers will be required to comply with the mandatory set- aside as well as the voluntary program.

Also, the department announced that livestock grazing will be permitted on acreage set aside under the provisions of the 1973 feed grain and wheat programs.

These actions clearly demonstrate the flexibility of the set-aside programs, USDA officials said, in that it enables adjustment to rapid changes in market demand.

When the 1973 wheat program was announced in July 1972, the amount of set-aside land required for program participation was an acreage equal to 86 per cent of the farm's domestic allotment.

Since announcement of the program, demand for wheat worldwide has developed following crop failures or reductions in grain harvest throughout much of Asia and in other portions of the world. Demand for other grain crops and for oilseed crops also has increased heavily.

The national wheat allotment for 1973 is 18.7 million acres. Elimination of the required wheat set -aside acreage will free nearly 15 million acres for production of crops, including wheat or forage. It is expected to add to market income earned by farmers.

No other 1973 wheat program provisions were changed except for elimination of the required set-aside percentage, USDA reported, and program payments will not be affected in any way by the reduction in set-aside acreage.

The decision to permit grazing on set-aside acreage was made in order to prevent or alleviate a shortage in the supply of livestock feed, the department explained. The grazing privilege will assist livestock producers in meeting increasing consumer demand for meat products by making additional forage available to supplement feed supplies for the production of livestock, the department added. Previously, grazing of set-aside acreage was not permitted during any of the five principal months of the normal growing season.

The department stated that there will be a reduction in payment for the privilege of grazing the set-aside acres. The county set-aside payment rate reduction for those producers electing to graze set- aside acreage will be available to all applicable county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

"The Flip Wilson Show"
Thursday, Jan. 25, 7-8P.M

Two top impersonators and one of the most impersonated celebrities in show business headline Flip's show-- Sammy Davis Jr., Marilyn Michaels and Ed Sullivan.

Flip, as Marvin Lattimer, invests partner Sammy's money in the installation of a juke box at a bus stop, in a sketch with Sammy impersonating Tony Bennett, Dean Martin and Frank Sinatra, and Marilyn doing Barbara Streisand.

A gunfight scene has Flip, Sammy and Marilyn "conveying" the scenery and props. In a reprise of last year's vaudeville- type act, Sammy and Flip play a song-and- dance team who wait for six weeks to get on "The Ed Sullivan Show."

Sammy sings the Billy Bigelow soliloquy from "Carousel" and "Candy Man," and dances his way through a history of "hoofing."

"Ironside"-"The Caller",
Thursday, Jan. 25 8-9 P.M.

Apartment- sitting in a penthouse for a girlfriend, Fran Belding is plagued by strange calls bordering on the obscene which the police are unable to trace. While assisting the beautiful policewoman, the chief meets a "junior grade Ironside," young Johnny Garver (Livingston), a boy who has failed to adjust to his paraplegia; a helpful apartment house handyman (Lambert); and an ambitious executive (Dabney Coleman)-- any of whom might be the caller.

The episode was written by Margaret Armen and directed by Don Weis.

CBS

"Here's Lucy"....

Elsa Lanchester --- Even Greater As Elsa Lanchester

That wonderfully expressive face with its pixie, saucer eyes, topped by a wild mop of red hair, looks a little older. But the same warm wit and vibrant animation are there. And you know the face belongs to the delightfully elfin lady of the theater, Elsa Lanchester, playing a funny scene with Lucille Ball.

The very candid Miss Lanchester never has pulled any punches about the kind of roles she will accept, so there has to be a good reason for her guest starring appearance as a somewhat bemused bank robber on "Here's Lucy" Monday, Jan. 22 (8:00— 8:30 PM,) on the CBS Television Network.

"I'm tired of playing fortune tellers and old aunties," she explains. "The kind where the role ends on the sixth page of the script. The rest of the time you're represented by a mound in a graveyard or a disembodied voice on the other end of the line."

On "Here's Lucy," it's Lanchester at her bewildered best. And she lasts long past the sixth page of the script as absent- minded Mumsy Westcott, whose memory lag about the big bank haul she pulled needs to be jogged.

Miss Lanchester, who earned an Oscar nomination for her performance in "Witness for the Prosecution" in which she appeared with her late husband, Charles Laughton, has kept busy playing her kind of roles for the 10 years since his death.

She explains her career longevity with another colorful quote.

"My career has lasted so long because I was a kept woman," she laughs. "I could say no to mediocre work because I was married to Charlie (Laughton). And I was never out to gather diamonds or to jangle with a lot of possessions. Rather naive, but status symbols never interested me."

Miss Lanchester, never at a loss for an opinion, offers some others.

On Marriage: "Actors make the best husbands. For one thing they are usually good cooks. They learned how when they were struggling up the ladder and the corner drug store was more expensive than a meal at home."

On Acting: "That's a show- off drug, you know. Everyone has a bit of show- off in him, but actors have a lot. I guess I really don't like acting. I'm a vaudevillian. It's the audience contact, I suppose, that I prefer."

On Television Talk Shows: "They're licensed egotism. It's like going to a psychiatrist. Very cleansing. Talking to people does me good. And I don't repeat myself very much. That's why I'm really a very good press agent."

Dr. Sean Jamison (Brian Keith), against his better judgement, stars in a movie being made by one of his little patients for a school project.

Sean is on deadline to complete a magazine article but little Stewart (Sean Tyler Hall) insists that he forget it and star in his movie. Sean is pressured from all directions, even by Miss Wilson (Gloria Nakea), the pretty school teacher. The doctor's office becomes a beehive of activity, with Alfred (Stephen Hague) as the director. Anne Jamison (Shelley Fabares), Puni (Victoria Young) and Ronnie (Michael Gray) portray themselves in the movie, which threatens the deadline and Sean's date with Miss Wilson.

This episode was written by Garry Marshall and Bob Brunner and directed by Brian Keith.

"Doorway to Death"

Jimmy Sangster wrote the drama; Daryl Duke directed.

PBS to weigh funding

NEW YORK (AP) — The board of the Public Broadcasting Service is holding an emergency meeting next week to weigh support for a nationwide public television hookup — financed without federal funds.

The idea stems from last week's resolution by the presidentially appointed board of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting to take over programming decisions formerly made in large part by PBS.

In past years, CPB, created by the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, mainly served to pass on congressional appropriations to PBS while rarely rejecting its national program recommendations.

The corporation now is asserting its decision-making power in the wake of complaints by the White House and some congressmen concerning the objectivity and balance of some PBS public-affairs programs.

PBS officials, who say they fear the corporation may become increasingly less responsive to the requests of public television stations, now are moving to see if there are ways to exist without federal funds.

PBS currently is asking officials at the nation's 233 public television stations if they approve of PBS plans to study "alternative means of funding a national interconnection which would be directly controlled by the stations."

PBS officials say this would be a nationwide public television hookup financed by other than federal funds — money from foundations, private and public contributions and so forth.

They say it would permit the broadcasting of some public-affairs shows and other programs — paid for without federal funds — on a system that isn't financed by the federal tax dollars now provided by CPB.

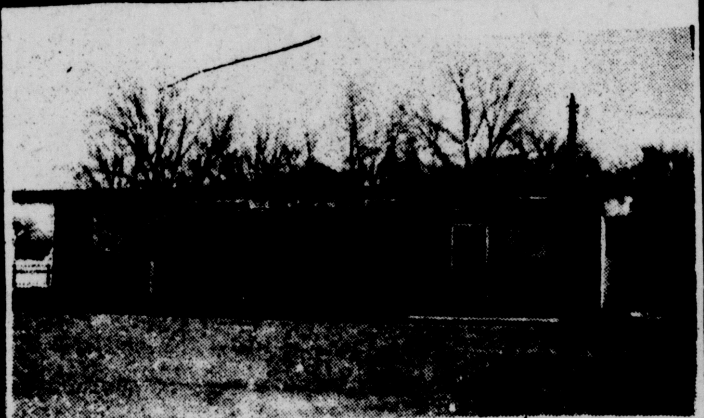

If that becomes the case, would PBS still need the approval of the parent corporation for the shows? Robert F. Shenkkan, board chairman of PBS, doesn't think so.

"I don't think it would be a concern of the corporation since it would not involve their money," said Shenkkan, head of KLRN-TV, a public television station in Austin, Tex.

The full 19-member PBS board will see what support it has for its new network proposal when it meets Jan. 24 in San Diego, Calif.

Is there now anything in the Public Broadcasting Act that bars public television stations from setting up a national hookup that doesn't depend on federal funds?

"No," Shenkkan said. "As a matter of fact, as I read the legislation, it really encourages the corporation to assist others in setting up such systems."

By the time their second child is born, Jody has become an overweight, unkempt housewife and Richard has become a successful surgeon who engages in a string of meaningless affairs.

When Jody learns of his philandering and attempts suicide, the couple decides to seek the help of a psychiatrist to try to save the marriage.

3 Charged in slayings at Grandin

DONIPHAN, Mo. (AP)-James Hall, Ripley County prosecutor, filed nine counts of murder charges in Magistrates Court here today against three men who were being held in connection with the extortion and murders of a Grandin bank president and two members of his family on Wednesday.

Hall said each of the three men were charged with three counts of murder in the shooting deaths of Robert R. Kitterman, 43, his wife Bertha, 38, and their daughter Roberta, 17, who were found tied to trees at an abandoned farm after $9,811 had been extorted from Kitterman's bank.

The Missouri Highway Patrol identified the three men as Dallas R. Delay, 33, of Valle Mines, and Jerry W. Rector, 22, and Lloyd D. Cowin, 21, both of Van Buren. The trio was being held at the Butler County Jail at nearby Poplar Bluff where they had been arrested on Friday.

Delay was arrested Friday night on warrants issued in Jefferson County, which charged him with obtaining money under false pretenses and changing an automobile identification number, police said. Cowin and Rector had been arrested at the house earlier, police said.

First for taxpayers

Must list township

For the first time since the filing of federal income tax returns was initiated, residents who live outside the limits on an incorporated area will have to enter the name of the township in which they live on their tax forms.

According to Carl E. Clark, manager of the Internal Revenue Service office in Cape Girardeau, the new requirement came about as a result of federal revenue - sharing law passed last year. The law, Clark explained, will redirect money into the taxpayer's area.

Clark said the law has caused confusion and misunderstanding among people because many don't know which township they live in.

Townships, including communities located in each, for Scott County are:

Richland Township: McMullen, Salcedo, Miner, Crowder and Sikeston.

Tywappity Township: Dielhstadt and Lusk Chapel

Commerce Township: Commerce.

Sandywood Township: Blodgett.

Kelso Township: Scott City, Illmo and Chaffee.

Moreland Township: Benton and New Hamburg.

Morley Township: Morley, Vanduser and Haywood City.

Sylvania Township; Oran, Bleda and Perkins.

Nixon highlights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of President Nixon's inaugural address:

"When we met here four years ago, America was bleak in spirit, depressed by the prospect of seemingly endless war abroad and of destructive conflict at home. As we meet here today, we stand on the threshhold of a new era of peace in the world. The central question before us is: How shall we use that peace?

"Let us resolve that this era we are about to enter will not be what other post-war periods have been: a time of retreat and isolation that leads to stagnation at home and invites new danger abroad.

"Because of America's bold initiatives, 1972 will be long remembered as the year of the greatest progress since World War II toward a lasting peace in the world.

"We shall respect our treaty commitments. We shall support vigorously the principle that no country has the right to impose its will or its rule on another by force. We shall continue, in this era of negotiation, to work for the limitation of nuclear arms, and to reduce the danger of confrontation between the great powers.

"We shall do our share in defending peace and freedom in the world. But we shall expect others to do their share.

"The time has passed when America will make every other nation's conflict our own, or make every other nation's future our responsibility, or presume to tell the people of other nations how to manage their own affairs.

"Abroad, the shift from old policies to new has not been a retreat from our responsibilities, but a better way to peace. At home, the shift from old policies to new will not be a retreat from our responsibilities, but a better way to progress.

"A person can be expected to act responsibly only if he has responsibility. This is human nature. So let us encourage individuals at home and nations abroad to do more for themselves and decide more for themselves.

"In our own lives, let each of us ask—not just what will government do for me, but what I do for myself?

Achter disrupts court proceedings

CHARLESTON — A preliminary hearing Friday morning in Magistrate Court was continued by Special Judge Lloyd Briggs of Scott County after the defendant, Leslie Allen Achter of East Prairie, repeatedly disrupted courtroom proceedings.

Achter interrupted Judge Briggs several times as the judge attempted to read the charges against him. Briggs warned Achter that unless he remained quiet he would have him bound and gagged and finally succeeded in reading the first charge, a felony of carrying a concealed. 38- caliber pistol, to which Achter pleaded not guilty.

Before the judge could read the second charge of burglary and stealing, Achter informed the court he was filing a writ of habeas corpus asking that his court-appointed attorney be disqualified on grounds he was biased and prejudiced toward him. Achter also asked for disqualification of Judge Briggs, who had previously disqualified himself in a Scott County case against Achter.

Achter continued to interrupt Briggs and after repeated warnings to remain quiet, Achter told the judge, "You can't make me shut my mouth." At this point Briggs directed Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons and Deputy Sheriff Jack Ivie to remove Achter from the courtroom and return him shackled and gagged.

Upon returning to the courtroom, Achter managed to get the gag out of his mouth and began shouting, "You're violating my constitutional rights." He was more firmly gagged and the reading of the burglary and stealing charges continued.

Briggs overruled the motion that he disqualify himself. However, Achter's court- appointed attorney was disqualified after asking to be allowed to withdraw from the case. Another attorney was appointed to represent Achter at a preliminary hearing at a later date.

Achter was arrested Dec. 20 in East Prairie by highway patrolmen. Reportedly, Achter had committed a traffic offense, and when officers stopped him, he jumped from his car and attempted to outrun them on foot. A 12 gauge shotgun, wedding band, guitar, electric razor, lighter and an Air Force ring stolen from the Bobby Johnson home near Anniston earlier the same day were reportedly found in Achter's car.

He remains in custody under $7,500 bond.

ABOLISH
JANUARY

From The Washington Post

The man who writes our benign and upbeat editorials celebrating the months of the year is out of town at the moment. But since they also have January where he is, the rest of us have decided not to deliver our collective opinion on the subject and simply to await his return. It is probably just as well.

When we put our heads together the other day, we were unable to think of anything that characterized January other than a flood of Christmas bills, the universal post-holiday need to go on a diet, deadline for paying the final installment on quarterly income taxes, head colds, cold in general, broken resolutions, smoker's cough, drinker's stomach and the endless opportunity to consider all this while sitting at the wheel of a car that won't start in the morning. One among us said he believed he had read somewhere that something on the whole beneficient happened to auks in the month of January, but no on could imagine what it was.

In general, the feeling of the group was that January, which after all holds out no prospect more cheering than the unfortunate arrival of February — was without redeeming social value.

Be that as it may, none of this should be construed as official Washington Post editorial policy. We defer that judgment until the return of our expert. At the same time, however, we do think it appropriate for us to take a firm editorial position on the unspeakable weather of the past few days — without implicating the month of January as such, one way or the other. After all, it could happen to practically any month, and even though you don't see too much of this sort of thing in July, it would be the height of irresponsibility to level sweeping charges or to name names before all the evidence is in.

Having said that (on the one hand), we are obliged (on the other) to add that it would be equally irresponsible to duck this difficult issue which is so much on the mind of the community at the moment. So we will come right out with it: We are against the weather; we oppose it; we think it should be sent back to committee.

These are not merely self-serving thoughts, the product of a typewriter we only wish were "smoking" as a fine phrase goes. There are substantial legal, moral and political grounds for opposing the scandalous temperatures of recent days.

They have been extreme (and we all know what we think of extremism) — and - worse — they have been discriminatory so far as the suburbs and the airports are concerned. They could be outlawed on these counts alone.

Now — how is it we get out of these things? — it is past time for men of good will to speak up, for the White House to end its puzzling silence, for the Congress to cease its delaying tactics, for the principals involved to move away from frozen positions, for a thaw in relations, for a breaking of the ice — what we mean to say (meaning no disrespect to January) is we think it is time for June.

NEW YEAR RECIPE

It's not too late in the new year of '73 to "cook up" the following recipe:

Take twelve fine, full-grown months; see that they are thoroughly free from all old memories of bitterness, rancor, and jealousy; cleanse from every clinging spite; wash off any specks of pettiness; in short, have them as fresh and clean as when they first came from the great storehouse of time.

Cut each of these months into thirty or thirty-one equal parts. This batch will keep for just one year. Do not attempt to make up the whole batch at one time (you may spoil the entire lot this way) but prepare one day at a time as follows:

Into each day put twelve parts of faith, eleven of patients, ten of courage, nine of work (if you omit this ingredient you will spoil the flavor of the rest), eight of hope, seven of fidelity, six of liberality, five of kindness, four of rest (leaving this out is like leaving the oil out of salad) and one well selected resolution.

Put in about a teaspoonful of good spirits, a dash of fun, a pinch of folly, a sprinkling of play and one heaping cupful of good humor.

Pour into the whole love, and mix with vim. Cook thoroughly in a fervent heat; garnish with a few smiles and a sprig of joy; then serve with quietness, unselfishness, and cheerfulness; and a Happy New Year is a certainty!

PROPOSAL FOR TAX SLAVERY

A sweeping program to establish national health insurance on a compulsory basis has been introduced in Congress. The nations is set for the last long plunge into the depths of a welfare state. It is up to the citizens of the United States, as taxpayers and voters, not to succumb to the sugarcoating on the bitter pill of statism that proponents of national health insurance hope the people will now swallow.

Advocates of the national health insurance proposal estimated, upon introduction of the measure, that it would cost Americans $40 billion a year. Only the most gullible will find it possible to accept the cost figures of those who sponsor the proposal. In the past, estimates have been woefully short. A tone of reality has entered the national health insurance debate with the sharp rejection of the plan by Mr. John G. Veneman, under secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. On the question of costs, Mr. Veneman comments, "Actuarial estimates from the Social Security Administration indicate that the total expenditures under this bill in the year 1974, which would be the first full year of its operation, would come to $77 billion...This is equal to about half the total present general revenues of the federal government and would be equivalent to a federal health tax of over $1,000 per year for every household."

Mr. Veneman further commented, "There are those who insist that the present system is sound and should be left alone. Others demand that we throw out the baby with the bath water and replace our pluralistic health enterprise with some monolithic scheme in which the federal government controls everything...." Mr. Veneman thinks both extremes are wrong. He believes, "the role of the federal government in part is properly to do what the private sector cannot do..." This is the heart of the expanded health care plan that has been recommended by the American Medical Association and is known as Medicredit.

National helath insurance can be far more than a mere health plan. It can be a device for altering the economic and political system of the United States and, as the cost of the current proposals indicate, could threaten virtually every American family with a form of tax bondage that amounts to slavery.

The woman was shopping in the supermarket and as she went from counter to counter, she kept humming and singing to herself.

"You seem to be very happy", the clerk remarked, smiling in the face of all this good cheer.

"I have every reason to be," replied the woman. "I have a beautiful home two lovely children, a comfortable sum of money in the bank, my husband's life is insured for $250,000 — and he's very sick!"

SOARING EDUCATION COSTS

From grade school through college, education is becoming a costly, complicated business. Education at all levels may bbe affected by taxpayer revolts and the inability of students and their families to pay tuition and other expenses of higher education.

At higher educational levels, rising costs are putting college out of reach of millions of American families. It costs up to $4,400 a year at present to attend a university. Consequently, applications are down at many institutions. If the present trend continues, estimates place tuition and living costs at a university in excess of $8,000 a year before the end of the 1970's. Currently, a bachelor's degree at a first-rank university costs a student about $22,000 – a doctorate up to $47,000. It requires a fourth to a half of an average family's income to pay expenses at most colleges if the student lives on campus.

It appears that the economics of acquiring an education may largely solve the problem of student unrest. Those fortunate enough to attend college will be there but for one purpose -- to get the most for their money in their chosen fields of learning.

Two cannibals opened a restaurant. In the window, they put a sign that read: MEN — $1.55, WOMEN — $2.20, HIPPIES — $25.00. A customer went in and asked one of the owners why it cost so much more to order "hippie."

The cannibal replied, "Did you ever try to clean one of them rascals?"

One statement heard frequently these days is that "American business can sell anything — except itself!" Certainly various opinion polls show that business has lost favor with the public. Polls also indicate that young people particularly have a serious lack of factual information on which to base a belief in business.

Yet anyone who thinks twice about the subject will agree that a prosperous, healthy America depends on a successful and respected business community. To overcome the lack of knowledge about industry and business, the National Association of Manufacturers and the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi are jointly encouraging students and businessmen to form Student / Industry Action Committees.

The action committees will be comprised of students and business representatives in all local college communities. The broad aim will be to stimulate discussion and explore areas of mutual concern to the community. Hopefully, these meetings will lead to active solutions of local problems as well as a deeper understanding and mutual respect for one another.

Today one-third of our population is enrolled in schools and colleges, and eight million students are now, or soon will be, eligible to vote. Seldom in history have citizens faced so many challenges to long-accepted beliefs. If our democratic, private enterprise, free society is to survive, these differences must be resolved.

The support and basic understanding of business by the younger generation is vital to our well-being. Active participation in this program will provide the opportunity for discussion of the benefits and the weaknesses of our economic and social systems. It can be the first step in resolving our problems.

WHAT IS HE TRYING TO DO TO AMERICA?

What is President Nixon trying to do to America?

First he cut in half the money that Congress voted for fighting pollution of our water, soil and air, a battle that is designed to prevent further poisoning of these elements and of the American people. That cut will prevent many cities, towns and states from taking the anti- pollution measures they should.

Now comes a cut in money for farmers in distressed areas in which emergencies have been declared because of drouth, floods or other disasters over which no one has control. The order went out last week that the Farmers Home Administration can lend no more money to farmers in such areas. Farmers in some of the distressed sections claim they will be unable to continue and will have to quit business because of lack of low cost money to carry them through to another crop year.

The final straw was last week, when the President ordered that no more federal money be loaned to rural electric cooperatives at the low interest rate that has made it possible for so many millions to enjoy the conveniences of electricity, running water, and the other advantages that go with them. Instead, if the rural cooperatives get the money they need, they'll have to get it from private sources, possibly some of the multi- millionaire friends of the administration, at the high going interest rates, which will eliminate thousands of rural families from the benefits of these facilities.

The reasons given, of course, are that this money will create more inflation, but at the same time billions are being spent in useless programs that benefit Big Business.

Some of the things that are happening in these United States simply don't make sense to us.

NEW CHIP PRESERVER

A new electronic "gun" pasteurizes wood chips and prevents deterioration in storage, which costs the lumber industry $200 million annually.

The unusual electron chip treatment, described as "resembling the operation of an outsized television tube" is a joint project of Georgia-Pacific Corp., mill in Toledo, Ore., and Radiation Development Ltd. of Vancouver, B. C.

The treatment, comparable to the process used for the preservation of food, appears to alter the molecular structure of the wood with a noticeable increase in the yield of pulp from the raw chips, a reduction of lignin loss, reduction in the use of chemicals, and faster pulping.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- Whipping up, with the drama of onrushing storm warnings in the voice of a TV weather forecaster, is that truly tumultuous battle between labor leaders and business executives over the right of major corporations to operate freely abroad; to invest their money where they choose; to seek lower wage areas anywhere in the world; to shut down their U.S. plants and produce even on China Sea coasts if they wish.

Most fiery of the issues is who is responsible for the flood of imports from steel to bras, from toys to television sets--- a flood which is sweeping away American jobs by the hundreds of thousands, say the unión chiefs.

Recently I wrote that some American workers were no longer the speediest or even the most skilled in the world.

My friend, the liberal leader of the militant, million-member International Assn. of Machinists (AFL— CIO) of the U.S. and Canada, read the column and disagreed with its thrust. And he wrote to tell me so.

Since his union, the AFL— CIO's second largest, is at the inner core of most industries and since he is a prominent national AFL— CIO president who adds a new dimension to the story which in mid— 1973 will be knwon as the War of the Burke— Hartke Bill, and in the driving compulsion of objectivity, I'm passing on his views here, in his own words:

By Floyd E. Smith,
President
International Association of
Mashinists and
Aerospace Workers

Dear Vic:

You've been around a year or two or three. You know as well as anyone that there's a lot of confusion surrounding this word "productivity." I read your recent column on the subject. I don't quarrel with your reporting; but I do want to add another dimension.

All thoughtful men will agree that we have to produce more if we want more Americans to enjoy a better life. We have to be competitive in order to survive. We never had any problem with foreign competition until the last few years. The problem doesn't come from a change in the work habits of Americans. In fact, American workers are still far and away the most productive in the world. According to the U.S. Department of Labor, American productivity is now increasing at about twice the normal rate.

But despite the increasing productivity, our foreign trade deficit has grown. We are importing more and exporting less-- in dollar volume. Moreover, we are importing more manufactured goods involving lots of skilled work and exporting agricultural produce that make few jobs.

Our problem is not the fact that the American standard of living is proportionately higher than it was in relation to Japan or Europe. Our problem arises because our industries have been selling, licensing or giving away-- in some cases-- the big advantage they have had over the Japanese and the Europeans and other nationalities.

Until the last decade, we produced better quality goods at lower prices because we had superior technology, better engineering and superior craftsmanship. That's what we are selling off and that is why American plants have lost their competitive advantage.

It's happening today even in our aerospace industry. Since World War II, the American aerospace industry has supplied most of the world's commercial and military aircraft. Until a couple of years ago, 85 per cent of the world's aircraft were made in American factories by American workers. Most of them are members of our Machinists Union, I am proud to say.That superiority is now declining. By 1980 the figure is expected to drop to 60 per cent. Like so many other American industries-- electronics, typewriters, computers, shoes, textiles, bicycles, pianos-- the aerospace industry is becoming multinational. More and more manufacturers are moving production into overseas plants.

Let me give you a few examples:

McDonnell Douglas has licensed Mitsubishi-- the company that produced the famed Zero dive bombers for World War II— to build 91 copies of the famous F- 4 Phantom fighter. The F- 4 is the most successful fighter of all time. It has had no serious competitor except the Russian MIG 21.

Up to now, the F- 4 has been built by Machinist Union members at S. Louis. But McDonnell Douglas has agreed to furnish the blueprints, the technology and, where necessary, technicians to build the F- 4 in Japan.

By the time that job is completed, Mitsubishi employees will know as much about building those jet fighters as McDonnell Douglas employees. From there on the advantage has to be all in favor of the Japanese because Japanese workers can live on a lot less than American workers.

Recently, the Boeing Company entered into an agreement with the Japanese government to develop a new wide- bodied air bus. Technology for the short- haul airliner will come from Seattle; the work will be done in Japan by employees of three manufacturers-- Mitsubishi, Kawasaki and Fuji.

At the same time, United Aircraft is helping Mitsubishi produce gas turbine engines. The technology will come from East Hartford.

It is no secret in Seattle that 200 Italians are being trained there by Boeing. Eventually they will go home to tool up an Italian aircraft plant to produce short take-off and landing aircraft (STOL) for the European market. Until now, Boeing planes sold to European airlines have always come from Seattle.

Our largest manufacturer of private aircraft, Cessna, is working with Reims Aviation of France. Most Cessnas sold in Europe last year were built in France.

These are a few recent examples of how one industry is exporting its technology instead of its products.

American workers already have lost nearly one million jobs because of the competition of foreign goods. The problem is never going to be solved by publicity campaigns urging American workers to greater effort.

American manufacturers who transfer production to plants in Europe do so because those countries prohibit or limit the importation of American- made goods. Sometimes the barriers are high tariffs, sometimes monetary or other restrictions. We think our government could negotiate for the same free trade and easy access to foreign markets that foreign producers have in the American market.

We think part of the answer lies in rewriting our strange tax law that now actually encourages American firms to do their manufacturing outside the United States.

We think there should be some government control over the export of our American technology. We ought to make sure that the licensing is not going to hurt the United States.

These answers are part of a bill in Congress known as the Burke— Hartke bill. It deserves a lot of support.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Pentagon Spending Spree

WASHINGTON — The defense industries have such a strangle- hold on the Capitol dome that Congress is in danger of losing its control over military spending.

For three decades, Congressmen have been showering greenbacks like confetti upon the Pentagon. Staggering amounts have been lavished on armaments that should never have been built. Cost overruns and wasteful squandering have become commonplace in defence work. Congressmen who would challenge every last detail of a $50,000 anti-poverty project would approve a $50 million Pentagon proposal with no questions asked.

This has created an atmosphere of fiscal abandon in the Pentagon and has led to a growing disregard for civilian fiscal authority.

The Anti-Deficiency Act, for example, forbids government employees from spending or obligating more money than Congress appropriates. A violation is considered a serious federal crime, punishable by a $5,000 fine and two years in prison.

Yet we recently uncovered documentary evidence that the Navy had spent millions without the consent of Congress. Now we have obtained some classified Army audits which show that the Army, too, is guilty of the same financial finagling.

We wrote about the Navy's "over- obligations," as the unauthorized spending is called, last November 14. Our story led to congressional inquiries, other newspaper disclosures and a government audit.

--Gross Mismanagement--

The Navy has now sent Congress a report on its illegal over- spending. Behind the dull fiscal details is a story of gross mismanagement. The document explains, for example, how the personnel people managed to spend $127 million for pay and travel beyond the level authorized by Congress.

Take the Navy's habit of moving people around. Although the Navy had only 623,248 people on its roster in 1971, it managed to relocate them 525,132 times during the year. Cost to the taxpayers: a whopping $240,772,000.

For breaking the law, two admirals have received letters of admonition, a captain has been relieved from duty, another captain has been transferred, and a clerk has been bawled out for altering official records.

Defense Secretary Mel Laird justified the light punishment, because he found no evidence of "intentional" over spending. He must not have read the Navy's report. It cites two officials for making "adjustments to official accounting records which distorted the status of obligations." In another instance, Navy people attempted to write $8,167,592 worth of bills on a special Treasury account in violation of regulations.

Like the Navy documents, the Army audits don't make exciting reading. But they show illegal expenditures over $180 million, another shocking defiance of Congress' power of the purse. Two separate audits show that the Army, as the Navy, has obligated money Congress hasn't appropriated for salaries and transportation.

--Balancing the Books--

The Army bursars had their worst trouble in 1970, finding their budget underestimated by more than $107 million. In an attempt to balance the books, they billed the Air Force, National Guard and Army Reserve for past services. This produced $32.7 million, which was illegally transferred to reduce the pay deficit.

The Army performed some additional sleight - of-hand with the budget for clothing and subsistence for Southeast Asia and magically produced another $74.7 million to cover the deficit. The audit sternly calls this maneuver an "improper transaction."

The second audit shows that the budget for Operation and Maintenance was overobligated $56.5 million in the 1971 fiscal year, most of it for transportation. Further investigation, warns the audit, "could ... increase amount possibly overobligated."

To make up the funds that had been illegally spent, the Army looked around for available funds and transferred money that had been earmarked for ammunition testing and base operations. Retroactive billings were drawn up to cover the dubious transaction.

The audit notes wryly that ammunition testing at Jefferson Proving Grounds, "as a result of the retroactive billing, was provided funds twice for the same project."

In response to our inquiries about the confidential audits, the Army said they were part of an "ongoing audit." Any violations will be reported to Congress and the President, a spokesman promised. He could not estimate when the final report would be ready.

Dystrophy week proclaimed

The week beginning Sunday has been proclaimed Muscular Dystrophy Week in Sikeston by Mayor Frank Ferrell.

Ferrell said the victims of Muscular Dystrophy, the majority of whom are children, derive comfort and hope from the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America comprehensive program of patient care and research.

Because the scope of the MDAA's research program also brings hope to millions suffering related neuromuscular diseases, Ferrell said he urges everyone to support the MDAA's work.

Bootheel alcoholism study prospects good

KENNETT — Prospects for obtaining a $50,000 initiation and development grant to study the problem of alcoholism in the Bootheel are good, according to Moody Summitt, director of Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council.

Summitt reported on the status of the grant Tuesday at a meeting of the Bootheel Task Force on Alcohol and Drug Abuse at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital.

An outgrowth of the one-year study is expected to be an ongoing program for the treatment of alcoholism, which would probably include a detoxification center for acute alcoholism patients, a halfway house where alcoholics could stay for a period of time in a protected environment and professional counselors to work with alcoholics, their families and employers.

Tomm Burris, a Bernie pharmacist, gave task force members a general view of the drug abuse problem in the United States and the bootheel area.

The program launched the second phase of the task force study, which will deal with drug abuse other than alcohol.

Ernie Sjoblem, state director of the Missouri Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, was introduced. The Missouri BNDD has the responsibility of monitoring the professional distribution of controlled substances in the state.

John Brazel of State Hospital No. 4 at Farmington gave a brief report on the work at the A. T. C. unit and mentioned that the beds for drug abuse are not in use due to lack of funding.

Lee Ford, regional development specialist, told of his background as a narcotics agent and of his recent work with the drug abuse program in Tennessee.

The next meeting of the task force will be in Sikeston in February.

What's the law?

The case of the black-eyed wife

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Margie wasn't cagy enough to handle the beast in her husband. Consequently, she couldn't stop him one day from beating her up. The next day, however, to salve her wounds, she sued him for assault and battery, demanding $1,000 for her injuries.

"Before we got married" she told the judge, "I used to close my eyes whenever my husband kissed me. Now he closes them for me...and I've got two shiners to prove it."

"For better or worse," was the defense, "she's my wife. And, a wife can't testify against a husband. Consequently, there's no lawful evidence that I struck her and her case has to be dismissed."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit black- eyed Margie to testify against her husband.?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that out of necessity a wife can testify against a husband when the husband is accused of assaulting his wife. The reason, the judge pointed out, is that generally no outsider is present when a husband inflicts the injuries. And if she were not allowed to testify, the law might be powerless to redress the wrong and the husband would be able to continually beat his wife with impunity.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter of 19 refuses to go to college, has no job and is not interested in job training of any kind. Her boyfriend is 21. He also lives with his parents. They have been "going steady" for four years and see each other every day and every night. (He works a split shift.) So far as we know they have no plans to get married-- now or maybe ever.

We give our daughter no allowance. She eats no meals with us, but takes junk to her room. She does no housework and fights with her brothers and sisters constantly.

Last week I moved her furniture to the garage. She moved it back. I told her then to get out. She said she would, with pleasure, when she can afford a place of her own.

My husband and I are physically sick from this girl's terrible attitude toward everything in life that should mean something. Must we keep her here until she gets ready to leave; Please advise.-- Up Against It

Dear Up: There are legal steps you can take to get a 19-year- old out of your house, but I suggest a few visits with a counselor before you see a lawyer at a last resort.

Obviously there is a serious problem of communication in your family, and you might profit from some professional guidance. If you think my answer is a cop- out, let me assure you it contains excellent advice, and I hope, for the sake of everyone concerned, that you will take it.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with you. Some other name should be given to a male nurse. Either "medic" or "corpsman" would be a great improvement.

I also agree with you that there is nothing unmanly about giving bedside care to the sick and infirm. Thanks for your stand on both issues.-- C.W., Director of Action Line, Akron Beacon Journal

Dear C.W.: How about "paramedic?" Medic means a physician or surgeon, and somehow "corpsman" is too close to "corpse."

It's goood to get a letter from Akron. And please say hello to your Publisher, Ben Maidenberg. He's a honey and one of my first friends in the newspaper business.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your comments on the deficiencies of American education. May I go further?

One of the most vital deficiencies is in consumer education. No one teaches students how to shop in a supermarket, how to buy beef, fresh fruits and vegetables, how to buy insurance, how to establish credit, how to trade a car-- what to watch out for. No instruction whatever on what to do if appliances don't work or where to take any number of complaints that consumers have in regard to faulty merchandise. No instructions on when to sue, or when to notify the Better Business Bureau. We are a nation of overfed and undernourished. We fall for every trick in the book because we are not informed.

When we try to get consumer education into the schools we encounter a brick wall of opposition. The schools are against it! Yet teachers contact us by the dozens and ask what to teach their students-- and how.

Will you please say a good word for consumer education, Ann? People listen to you.--Mrs. D.R.J. Super- Mkt. Chairman Committee, Va. Citizen's Consumer Council

Dear Mrs. D.R.J.: I received dozens of letters from readers urging me to get behind consumer education. You said it best. Here's your letter and my thanks for writing it.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting-- What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper, enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self addressed envelope.

Rules for making new kids rules

Clear cut rules for behaving make day to day living easier. Children should be taught the rules of living comfortably with their family as well as others. By spelling out the rules of guides for their children, patents can know when to reward, ignore and punish. Rules also help the child to remember what is expected.

Here are some rules about making rules: Rules should be short, stated positively and easy to remember for parent and child. An example of this is "Homework before TV", not "If you don't get your homework done, you can't watch TV".

Make it clear what you want and what happens if it 'oesn't get done. Instead of saying "Dishes must be washed each night," try this, "Dishes must be washed before TV".

It should be easy to see if the rule was followed or not. When a rule gives the details of what has to by done, the child has no excuse for only doing a part. Vague rules are hard to check. When you tell your child to clean h's room befo egoing out to play, don't tell him specific things to be done. You may forget some and he will, too. Simply state that you want a complete job. Then stick to it.

Be sure the rule is appropriate for your child's age and abilities.

The top soybean crops this year will start with Fumazone nematicide. If you're growing soybeans in the Delta area this year, you'd better get ready for one of the biggest problems a soybean crop ever had—the soybean cyst nematode. These are the little underground pests that wilt, stunt and yellow your young soybean plants. The way to control them is to treat your croplands with FUMAZONE* brand nematicide. Apply this low-cost soil fumigant once—before you plant or when you plant—and you'll hit soybean cyst nematodes right where they live—effectively and economically. Meadows LHS surprise

LILBOURN — Despite the services of Pope Hunt and Alfred Redd for the first time this season, the Daily Standard's sixth ranked Lilbourn Panthers and a couple of whistle happy referees managed to hand Sikeston its ninth straight defeat, 76-66, Friday night.

Three technicals in the final quarter by the officials took the heart out of a Sikeston comeback attempt and kept the Bulldog defense confused all game with their questionable charging fouls.

Pope Hunt, Sikeston's 6-foot-4 pivotman, was unstoppable in the contest. The senior, in his first game back with the team, scored 28 points and collared 18 rebounds in the defeat.

Sikeston did enjoy moments of rejoyce as the Bulldog junior varsity handed the Panthers its first loss of the season, 52-51.

Sparkplug for the cold-shooting Panthers was Carl Meadows.

The 6-foot-2 junior, usually operating out of a reserve's role, was handed a rare starting assignment and he responded with a 22-point effort. Fourteen of those came in the Panther's second quarter surge when they assumed a nine-point halftime lead.

Sikeston, as has been the case lately, won the battle of statistics, but lost the important one -- the one on the scoreboard. The Bulldogs shot 43 per cent, compared to their hosts' 40 per cent mark. They outrebounded the shorter Panthers 41-27 and had two turnovers less, 22 - 20.

However, the quicker Panthers were able to beat Sikeston to loose balls. Also, the Panthers kept a closer rein on their tongues.

The Bulldogs were obviously buoyed by the presence of Hunt. They played fine basketball for the first eight minutes, and only a hot-shooting Lilbourn quintet kept the score from getting out of hand. Hunt, outjumping everyone, scored ten points, mostly on inside shots as the Bulldogs led 16 -15.

Sikeston's poor effort in the second period cost them the ball game. Instead of working the ball inside, the team reverted to their former practice of shooting 30-foot shots and the Panthers outscored them 20-10 for a 35-26 halftime lead. In those eight minutes, Meadows was fabulous for Lilbourn hitting six of seven shots and scoring 14 points to go with five rebounds.

The Bulldogs' play was sloppy in the third period. The shooting was off, and Hunt seemed to momentarily lose his touch inside. Sikeston managed just a dozen points and fell two more points arears of the Panthers, 49-38.

Action in the fourth period was hot and furious. The Dogs pulled within four points, 55-51, but technical fouls tore up any comeback efforts by the red-clad Bulldogs. The referees, calling their first contest, struggled for control of the game. Consequently, three technicals were called on the Bulldogs, two on one of SHS's most mild-managered players, Jeremiah Tucker.

Good efforts for the Bulldogs came from Ron Marks, Mark Couch, Paul Hewitt, and Jeremiah Tucker, in addition to Hunt's sterling performance. Marks controlled his game much better. Couch hit four clutch free throws in the fourth quarter, in addition to playing good defense. Hewitt hit four crucial points late in the first half, as his teammates were struggling in their play. Tucker, expected to score less with the arrival of Hunt, played ony of his best games. The 6-foot-3 forward scored 13 points and grabbed ten rebounds, despite missing much of the game in foul trouble.

It was Tucker's absence, coupled with Meadows' second quarter performance that ultimately spelled defeat for the winless Bulldogs. Sikeston's next game is against Doniphan's Dons in the Poplar Bluff Invitation tournament next week.

The Bulldogs did win the night's opening contest. A come- from- behind effort, led by sophomore Roger Tillman, handed the Lilbourn JV's just their ninth loss in their last 105 games, 52-51.

Early the game belong to Lilbourn. They enjoyed leads as much as ten points in the first half. But, the tenacious junior Bulldogs kept battling and finally pulled their fifth win out of the bag.

Tillman's scoring inside was a big factor, but it was overall a team effort as the underclassmen ran their record to 5-3.

Tigers take Cooter

COOTER– The Daily Standard's fifth rated Caruthersville Tigers chewed up the Cooter Wildcats 95- 45 here Friday night.

Coach Hugh James emptied his bench and nine boys hit the scoring column with George Cunningham getting 19 points to take high game honors.

Cooter spent much of the time watching the Tigers put the ball through the hoop as Caruthersville stuffed in 23 points to only seven for their host.

The Tigers kept pouring in the points in the second period and led at the half 47- 22. The second half was a carbon copy of the first as the Tigers were running wild against a much smaller and less talented team and scored 48 points in the last two periods to 23 for Cooter.

Cooters only bright spot of the night was 18 points by Bob Brown. Caruthersville hit 41 field goal shots to 15 for the Wildcats.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Five more members of the 1973 edition of the St. Louis baseball Cardinals signed their contracts Thursday, including base-stealing whiz Lou Brock.

The veteran leftfielder signed for an estimated $115,000.

Others who inked their pacts were pitchers Al Antorini and Rick Wise, catcher Tim McCarver and infielder Bob Fenwick.

Thirteen Cardinals have now come to terms for the new season.

Advance wins 30th straight

ESSEX– Coach Carroll Cookson's Advance Hornets started hot against the Richland Rebels here Friday night and raced to a 80- 63 Stoddard county victory behind a balanced scoring attack led by Terry Wills' 25 points.

The Hornets showed the Rebels why they're the Daily Standard's number one team as the Rebels tried to use a zone defense but Kenny Emerson drilled in a couple of 20 foot shots and the Class S state champions were off and running.

Emerson and Wills had the hot hand in the first period and the Hornets raced to a 23- 16 lead at the buzzer.

Richland began to hit from the outside a little better in the second period and Advance hit a cool spell. The Hornets scored 20 points to 15 for Richland and the halftime score was 43- 31.

Richland tried to stay with the quick Hornets in the third quarter but Advance put in 21 points to 16 for the Rebels. The last period was played evenly at 16 points apiece.

The Hornets put four men in double figures for the game. Besides Wills 25 points, Darrell Croy hit 16, Kenny Emerson had 14, and Roger Daniel hit 10.

Rodney McKeller and Ray Clark hit 16 apiece for the Rebels with Kenny Cain getting 10.

Advance hit 32 shots from the field and 16 free throws. Richland had 29 field goals and only five free throws.

Both teams enter the Stoddard County Tournament next week at Bloomfield.

VEGETABLE OF THE YEAR

When seedsmen, meeting at Penn State University, Penna., were asked to name a "Vegetable of the Year" based on popularity among home gardeners, the giant red variety of tomato won their vote.

When a beginner gardener first decides to plant a vegetable garden, the one vegetable he'll most likely start with is the tomato, and when a group of leading seedsmen, meeting at Penn State University, Pennsylvania, were asked to name a Vegetable of the Year,"the giant red tomato won easily.

Tomatoes come in many shapes and sizes — some pear-shaped, others orange and yellow colored, some the size of cherries, but those that fall into the giant red category — such as Beefsteak, Big Boy, Better Boy, Rutgers, Whopper, Early Giant and Delicious are the most universally grown and the most productive.

Tomatoes grown from seed are best started about eight weeks before the last frost date, and transplanted into the garden after danger of frost.

It's difficult to fail with tomatoes once they're in the ground, although they will respond better to certain conditions—such as a sunny location, good drainage and a fertile soil. A mulch of straw, grass clippings or chopped leaves will conserve moisture and keep the fruit clean. Staking keeps the vines neat, and makes fruit picking easier.

For the Sportsman

by Fred Copeland

for the sportsman

All the traffic safety classes in the world and all the highway safety posters wouldn't have saved the 36 squirrels, 24 foxes, 95 skunks or the one careless mink who were wiped out by automobiles on 80 miles of road near Republic, Missouri.

Workers out of the Missouri State Highway Department shed in Republic kept a count of animals between Nov. 15, 1971, and Nov. 15, 1972, on the 80 miles they service.

The total was an astonishing 822 or about 10 animals per mile. Opossums, which were not noted for their survival instinct anyway (an opossum's idea of taking evasive action is to shut his eyes and play dead) led the list with 287.

There were 95 skunks, 95 housecats, 68 dogs, 61 rabbits, 36 birds, and 36 squirrels, 48 raccoons, 24 foxes, 22 groundhogs, and 10 frogs.

Six badgers bit the dust, although badgers have only been found in the area the last five or six years.

Most astounding kill on the list was that of three fish that were found on M-highway where it crosses Wilson's Creek.

A gasoline truck did in the four horses the seven-man highway crew found. The crew estimated it missed probably 50 more animals. Each day the men recorded the number of miles, gas and hours on a board on the wall and at the same time, record the dead animals they found.

Oddly, there were only two deer killed, though collisions between autos and deer account for a number of accidents each year. The Department of Conservation and Highway Department have cooperated for several years in putting reflectors at well-known deer crossings which have proved highly effective at night at keeping the animals from jumping in front of cars.

Anybody having any comments, information, or pictures for this column should address them to Fred Copeland at the Daily Standard. The column has not been run for the last two weeks because of lack of material. All material received concerning hunting, fishing, or conservation will be brough out in future columns.

Reflectors such as these, located at deer crossings, have helped to cut down dramatically on collisions at night between automobiles and deer. But cars take a heavy toll of wildlife on Missouri highways every year.

Oran, Delta take consoliation wins

EAST PRAIRIE — Oran won the consolation game in the A team division in the Scott- Mississippi county tournament Friday night beating the Illmo- Scott City Rams 68-60 while in the B team division, the Delta Bobcats trimmed the Scott Central Braves 52-37 to win that consolation prize.

Coach Joe Scott's Eagles had to fight an uphill battle to take the prize when the Rams took a quick 10-6 first period as the Eagles were cold from the field.

Both teams began to hit in the second period and each team netted 16 points apiece. The score stood at 26-22 in favor of the Rams at the half.

After the intermission the Eagles went to work offensively and broke the game open with 23 points to 13 for the Rams. Oran kept up the pace in the last quarter scoring 23 more points to 21 for ISC.

Oran hit 33 field goals to 25 for the Rams but ISC took the free throw advantage 10-2.

Paul Taylor was the big man for the Eagles in the scoring column with 22 points on 11 field goals. Rand Amick led a four man double figure attack for the Rams with 17 points.

In the B game the Delta Bobcats of Coach Dale Harrison shot out to an 18-8 first period lead and coasted to the third place position.

Delta kept adding to their lead in the second period, scoring 15 points to six for the Braves.

The Braves finally slowed the Bobcats a little in the third quarter, scoring 12 points to nine for Delta.

The Braves kept battling back but came up short at the buzzer. Paul Slinkard led the Bobcats in scoring with 20 points. Gary Peet hit eight for the Braves.

Title games are on tap tonight, matching Kelly and Oran teams in the junior varsity title bout at 6:30. Kelly and Scott Central collide in the varsity title match at 8.

Cape seeks new police site

CAPE GIRARDEAU — City Manager W. G. Lawley says he hopes the city can acquire a site for construction of a new police headquarters and jail facility within 90 days.

"All we know at this point is that the ideal site for the headquarters would be in the same general area of the city as the present station," he said.

The city manager did not rule out the possibility that the police building might be located on the site of the present station. But he did say a larger site is needed.

The City Council Wednesday night unanimously approved a resolution providing that the first expenditure from the city's federal revenue- sharing funds be used to build a new police headquarters. All city councilmen had agreed that such a facility demanded immediate attention.

The building housing present station and jail formerly was a church. The city purchased it at a cost of $45,000 in April 1959. It is "an inadequate and inappropriate structure," the council resolved.

Lawley said the council's action "merely paved the way" for initiating site acquisition options and actual planning of the facility. "We haven't really got into any details yet," he said.

"We want to put a lot of thought into it," he added. "A great deal of effort has got to go into the planning."

City officials hope the new building can be occupied within 19 to 24 months. They have given no indication when construction might begin.

"We are going to give a lot of thought to the future growth of the city before we make a final decision on location and plans," Lawley said. "What we would like to do is have several options in mind before determining where the building will be built."

Lawley said plans are to construct a "functional building as opposed to a monumental structure." It must serve the city for years to come, he pointed out.

Feed program decisions near

NEW MADRID — With sign-up in the 1973 feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs due to open in less than three weeks, New Madrid County producers have many decisions to make, reports Bernard Recker, Agricultural Stablization and Conservation (ASC) county committee chairman.

"In these coming weeks, each producer with a feed grain base or wheat or cotton allotment must make his individual decisions on whether to participate in the programs, and, if so, what plans to choose among those that are offered.

Sign-up for the 1973 feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs in scheduled Feb. 5 through March 16 at the New Madrid County ASCS Office, 565 Virginia St., New Madrid, Mo.

Participants in the feed grain set-aside program will decide whether to sign up for the 30 per cent plan or the 15 per cent plan.

"This is the main program decision a farmer will make, once he decides to be in one or more of the programs," Recker said, "but his entire farm operating plan for the year is tied in with his decisions on farm program participation.

"Before he signs up, he will want to know what land he is going to set aside if he's in the feed grain program, and he will have decided what crops he's going for -- whether he will substitute crops, whether he will grow an alternate crop on his set - aside land and take a payment reduction."

Substitution is continued in the 1973 farm programs, the ASC committee chairman pointed out. He explained that substitution means a producer may choose among the following crops -- corn, grain sorghum, barley, wheat, soybeans -- and still preserve his farm's base or allotment record, earn program payments, and be elibible for loans so long as he stays within other program requirements.

Alternate crops permitted on set-aside land, if a producer accepts a reduction in program payment, include sunflower, safflower, sesame, guar, mustard seed, castor beans, crambe, and plantago ovato.

"These and other details of the 1973 programs for feed grains, wheat, and cotton will be available to producers through leaflets and explanations offered by the county ASCS office before sign-up begins and throughout the rest of the year," Recker said.

Mandatory set-aside program eliminated

NEW MADRID — In a move to assure an adequate supply of agricultural commodities to meet a growing market demand, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced the elimination of the mandatory set- aside requirement under the 1973 wheat program, except for those producers who elect to participate in the voluntary set-aside.

In order to participate in the voluntary set-aside program, these producers will be required to comply with the mandatory set- aside as well as the voluntary program.

Also, the department announced that livestock grazing will be permitted on acreage set aside under the provisions of the 1973 feed grain and wheat programs.

These actions clearly demonstrate the flexibility of the set-aside programs, USDA officials said, in that it enables adjustment to rapid changes in market demand.

When the 1973 wheat program was announced in July 1972, the amount of set-aside land required for program participation was an acreage equal to 86 per cent of the farm's domestic allotment.

Since announcement of the program, demand for wheat worldwide has developed following crop failures or reductions in grain harvest throughout much of Asia and in other portions of the world. Demand for other grain crops and for oilseed crops also has increased heavily.

The national wheat allotment for 1973 is 18.7 million acres. Elimination of the required wheat set -aside acreage will free nearly 15 million acres for production of crops, including wheat or forage. It is expected to add to market income earned by farmers.

No other 1973 wheat program provisions were changed except for elimination of the required set-aside percentage, USDA reported, and program payments will not be affected in any way by the reduction in set-aside acreage.

The decision to permit grazing on set-aside acreage was made in order to prevent or alleviate a shortage in the supply of livestock feed, the department explained. The grazing privilege will assist livestock producers in meeting increasing consumer demand for meat products by making additional forage available to supplement feed supplies for the production of livestock, the department added. Previously, grazing of set-aside acreage was not permitted during any of the five principal months of the normal growing season.

The department stated that there will be a reduction in payment for the privilege of grazing the set-aside acres. The county set-aside payment rate reduction for those producers electing to graze set- aside acreage will be available to all applicable county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

"The Flip Wilson Show" Thursday, Jan. 25, 7-8P.M

Flip, as Marvin Lattimer, invests partner Sammy's money in the installation of a juke box at a bus stop, in a sketch with Sammy impersonating Tony Bennett, Dean Martin and Frank Sinatra, and Marilyn doing Barbara Streisand.

A gunfight scene has Flip, Sammy and Marilyn "conveying" the scenery and props. In a reprise of last year's vaudeville- type act, Sammy and Flip play a song-and- dance team who wait for six weeks to get on "The Ed Sullivan Show."

Sammy sings the Billy Bigelow soliloquy from "Carousel" and "Candy Man," and dances his way through a history of "hoofing."

"Ironside"-"The Caller", Thursday, Jan. 25 8-9 P.M.

Chief Ironside (Raymond Burr) fears Officer Fran Belding (co- star Elizabeth Baur) is the object of a disturbed man's fantasies when she receives a series of anonymous calls. Paul Lambert and Barry Livingston guest- star.

Apartment- sitting in a penthouse for a girlfriend, Fran Belding is plagued by strange calls bordering on the obscene which the police are unable to trace. While assisting the beautiful policewoman, the chief meets a "junior grade Ironside," young Johnny Garver (Livingston), a boy who has failed to adjust to his paraplegia; a helpful apartment house handyman (Lambert); and an ambitious executive (Dabney Coleman)-- any of whom might be the caller.

The episode was written by Margaret Armen and directed by Don Weis.

CBS

"Here's Lucy"....

Elsa Lanchester --- Even Greater As Elsa Lanchester

That wonderfully expressive face with its pixie, saucer eyes, topped by a wild mop of red hair, looks a little older. But the same warm wit and vibrant animation are there. And you know the face belongs to the delightfully elfin lady of the theater, Elsa Lanchester, playing a funny scene with Lucille Ball.

The very candid Miss Lanchester never has pulled any punches about the kind of roles she will accept, so there has to be a good reason for her guest starring appearance as a somewhat bemused bank robber on "Here's Lucy" Monday, Jan. 22 (8:00— 8:30 PM,) on the CBS Television Network.

"I'm tired of playing fortune tellers and old aunties," she explains. "The kind where the role ends on the sixth page of the script. The rest of the time you're represented by a mound in a graveyard or a disembodied voice on the other end of the line."

On "Here's Lucy," it's Lanchester at her bewildered best. And she lasts long past the sixth page of the script as absent- minded Mumsy Westcott, whose memory lag about the big bank haul she pulled needs to be jogged.

Miss Lanchester, who earned an Oscar nomination for her performance in "Witness for the Prosecution" in which she appeared with her late husband, Charles Laughton, has kept busy playing her kind of roles for the 10 years since his death.

She explains her career longevity with another colorful quote.

"My career has lasted so long because I was a kept woman," she laughs. "I could say no to mediocre work because I was married to Charlie (Laughton). And I was never out to gather diamonds or to jangle with a lot of possessions. Rather naive, but status symbols never interested me."

Miss Lanchester, never at a loss for an opinion, offers some others.

On Marriage: "Actors make the best husbands. For one thing they are usually good cooks. They learned how when they were struggling up the ladder and the corner drug store was more expensive than a meal at home."

On Acting: "That's a show- off drug, you know. Everyone has a bit of show- off in him, but actors have a lot. I guess I really don't like acting. I'm a vaudevillian. It's the audience contact, I suppose, that I prefer."

On Television Talk Shows: "They're licensed egotism. It's like going to a psychiatrist. Very cleansing. Talking to people does me good. And I don't repeat myself very much. That's why I'm really a very good press agent."

Dr. Sean Jamison (Brian Keith), against his better judgement, stars in a movie being made by one of his little patients for a school project.

Sean is on deadline to complete a magazine article but little Stewart (Sean Tyler Hall) insists that he forget it and star in his movie. Sean is pressured from all directions, even by Miss Wilson (Gloria Nakea), the pretty school teacher. The doctor's office becomes a beehive of activity, with Alfred (Stephen Hague) as the director. Anne Jamison (Shelley Fabares), Puni (Victoria Young) and Ronnie (Michael Gray) portray themselves in the movie, which threatens the deadline and Sean's date with Miss Wilson.

This episode was written by Garry Marshall and Bob Brunner and directed by Brian Keith.

"Doorway to Death"

Friday, Jan. 26-8-9 PM

An empty apartment is all that most people find behind a forbidden door but the twins, Robert and Jane, find a friend there-- the ghost of a wife- slayer.

Jimmy Sangster wrote the drama; Daryl Duke directed.

PBS to weigh funding

NEW YORK (AP) — The board of the Public Broadcasting Service is holding an emergency meeting next week to weigh support for a nationwide public television hookup — financed without federal funds.

The idea stems from last week's resolution by the presidentially appointed board of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting to take over programming decisions formerly made in large part by PBS.

In past years, CPB, created by the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, mainly served to pass on congressional appropriations to PBS while rarely rejecting its national program recommendations.

The corporation now is asserting its decision-making power in the wake of complaints by the White House and some congressmen concerning the objectivity and balance of some PBS public-affairs programs.

PBS officials, who say they fear the corporation may become increasingly less responsive to the requests of public television stations, now are moving to see if there are ways to exist without federal funds.

PBS currently is asking officials at the nation's 233 public television stations if they approve of PBS plans to study "alternative means of funding a national interconnection which would be directly controlled by the stations."

PBS officials say this would be a nationwide public television hookup financed by other than federal funds — money from foundations, private and public contributions and so forth.

They say it would permit the broadcasting of some public-affairs shows and other programs — paid for without federal funds — on a system that isn't financed by the federal tax dollars now provided by CPB.

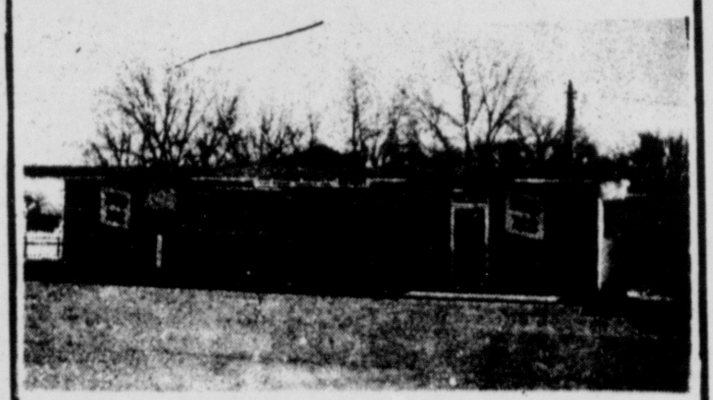

If that becomes the case, would PBS still need the approval of the parent corporation for the shows? Robert F. Shenkkan, board chairman of PBS, doesn't think so.

"I don't think it would be a concern of the corporation since it would not involve their money," said Shenkkan, head of KLRN-TV, a public television station in Austin, Tex.

The full 19-member PBS board will see what support it has for its new network proposal when it meets Jan. 24 in San Diego, Calif.

Is there now anything in the Public Broadcasting Act that bars public television stations from setting up a national hookup that doesn't depend on federal funds?

"No," Shenkkan said. "As a matter of fact, as I read the legislation, it really encourages the corporation to assist others in setting up such systems."

By the time their second child is born, Jody has become an overweight, unkempt housewife and Richard has become a successful surgeon who engages in a string of meaningless affairs.

When Jody learns of his philandering and attempts suicide, the couple decides to seek the help of a psychiatrist to try to save the marriage.

Jane Powell and Howard Keel star in the rollicking musical "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers", color presentation on "The CBS Late Movie", Monday, Jan. 22 (starting at 10:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

After Milly (Miss Powell) marries Adam Pontipee (Keel), she discovers that she is expected to keep house and cook for his six brawny backwoods brothers. Concluding that the only way out is for her to marry them off, she cleans up the boys, teaches them the rudiments of courtship and introduces them to six prospective wives. When the brothers meet opposition, Adam advises them to abduct the girls. Furious at such a move, Milly locks the boys out of the house and takes care of the girls until spring, when tempers thaw and love moves in.

Jack Cummings produced, and Stanley Donen directed the 1954 MGM release. Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich and Dorothy Kingsley wrote the screenplay from Stephen Vincent Benet's "The Sobbin' Women."
